INSULL REFUSES TO SURRENDER TO TURKS

Today

Kahn, Sincere Adviser.
To Film the Odyssey.
5,000,000 Fluffy, Doomed Chicks.
The New Shell.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

LAST MONTH Otto H. Kahn, with his friend, Sir William Wiseman, was photographed at the Hialeah race track, smiling cheerfully. Last Thursday he went to his office as usual, rose from his desk a little after one o'clock and fell to the floor dead.

News of his death was withheld, as is usual in the case of financiers of importance, until after the stock exchange closed. A clot of blood, traveling to the heart, instantly settled every business transaction, lawsuit, engagement, commitment and plan on this earth for the well-known financier.

MR. KAHN HAD been a wise financial adviser up to 1929. For instance, while the New York Stock Exchange was closed at the war's beginning he said to this writer:

"Buy all you can, as many thousand shares as possible of General Motors stock. I know all about it. You will make money."

The stock sold then under sixty dollars a share. With additional stock given away its value rose until it became equivalent to $5,000 a share. Even one thousand shares of stock, which could have been bought on margin for about $10,000, would have yielded a profit of approximately five millions.

Later, when the war was well under way, and weapons in demand, Mr. Kahn said:

"You would not take my advice about General Motors. Now, listen when I tell you to buy Winchester Arms. It is going up right away."

Mr. Kahn was right. Winchester Arms, selling that day at fifteen hundred dollars a share, went up within a week, two thousand dollars, to thirty-five hundred dollars a share. The writer, by the way, never bought or owned a share of General Motors or Winchester Arms.

IT WAS a hard blow for Mr. Kahn to find his sound judgment suddenly replaced by absolute uncertainty. After the depression had gone on for a while, with a long way still to go, he said to this writer:

"Next year we shall be cursing each other for not having bought everything in sight now."

He, perhaps, did buy, and if he did it was to lose heavily. You lose confidence in yourself, and even lose health, when you realize that your judgment has suddenly become worthless.

Mr. Kahn's advice was always sincere, unlike that of some other Wall street gentlemen of whom it is said, truly, that their financial advice is about as valuable as a sprig of poison ivy.

MR. ALFRED BUTES, head of the London Times Book Club, sends a Times clipping, suggesting a moving picture based on the many adventures of Ulysses in the Odyssey.

There is no Homeric copyright, and Hollywood might also try it. Directors would encounter no lack of the interesting "sex interest." It would begin gently with the lovely Nausicaa, playing ball with her maidens on the beach, when Ulysses comes crawling up out of the sea.

The nymph, Calypso, so sad, and Circe, turning her gentlemen friends into swine would offer "big parts." One British film expert suggests that bristles be shown growing out of the skin of Circe's victims to help make the "film fans' " flesh creep.

Marie Dressler could be Penelope, and make that part gay.

A modern touch might be added by inviting Mr. Gar Wood, in his fastest motorboat, to show in close-ups Ulysses' entire trip, going places and seeing things, from the pillars of Hercules to the end, a journey so long and wearisome, originally, covered now in a few hours, as the distance covered by Moses in his forty years of wandering could be covered today in one morning by airplane, with time to spare.

NEW-BORN FLUFFY yellow chicks, "very cunning," have been distributed in millions for Easter ornamentation in restaurants, and for the amusement of children. Petaluma, California, the world's greatest poultry center, sends out five million Easter chicks. Shipped immediately after hatching, they can travel a long distance without food or water, living on what they got from the egg. A majority of these baby chickens die of neglect or ignorance, still looking "very cunning."

THE OLD struggle between "the shell that pierces steel armor and the armor to stop any shell" is decided for the moment in favor of the shell. Sheffield, England, announces a shell that will pierce a plate of the toughest armor of the thickness of that shell's gun caliber and go on nine miles farther. Such shells, weighing nearly a ton, are expensive, but in war money ceases to be important.

CONGRESSMEN, PASSING the Bankhead bill for government control of the cotton crop, approve limiting the 1934-1935 crop to 10,000,000 bales, with a tax of 75 per cent on all cotton above that market. Foreign cotton growers will al[illegible] the bill and the dimi[illegible] petition.

Some, viewing nearly ev[illegible] thing with alarm, call the bill "socialism." Others call it "common sense," including practically the entire representation in Congress from the cotton states.

Under the bill, each cotton farmer is told how much cotton he may raise and fined so much a pound for raising more.

COAL STRIKE THREATS REVIVED

Minority Group Balks At 7-Hour Day Agreement

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(AP.)—A battle was in prospect today over the proposed inauguration of a seven-hour day throughout America's far-flung bituminous coal industry.

The plan has the support of the United Mine Workers' entire membership and a majority of the mine owners in the East. However, strong opposition has been evidenced by operators from the Illinois, Indiana and Southwestern districts.

Because the seven-hour day and higher wages have been approved for the 350,000 miners of the Appalachian soft coal fields, there was a growing apprehension that strikes among the other bituminous miners might result if they were not given shorter hours and wage increases.

APPALACHIAN PACT

The new Appalachian wage contract, ratified yesterday after almost six weeks of continuous negotiation, goes into effect April 1, expiration date of the coal code provisions fixing wages and hours.

Operators outside the Appalachian region have wage contracts with the union which do not expire until April 1, 1935, but whether these would insure continuation of the eight-hour day

WEIRTON CASE HEARING SET

WILMINGTON, Del., March 31.—(AP.)—The Federal District Court of Delaware today fixed April 30 for argument on a rule to show cause why preliminary relief should not be granted in the government's injunction suit against the Weirton Steel Company.

Pay of 1,300 Raised To 1929 Rate Level

WORCESTER, Mass., March 31.—(AP.)—The Wickwire-Spencer Steel Company was added today to the steel companies announcing wage increases for employes. Fred J. Connor, district manager, said workers employed on hourly wages and piece work would be given an advance effective April 2. The amount of the raise is not specified, but Connor said it would return wages to a level comparable to 1929 rates. About 1,300 workers will get the increases.

Countess Held For Turpitude Seeks Divorce

LADY HODGE

SPOUSE READY TO FIGHT ACTION

International News Service.

LONDON, March 31. — Lady Hodge, former Vera, Countess Cathcart, has instituted divorce proceedings against her millionaire ship-owner husband, Sir Rowland Hodge, the Daily Express said today.

The paper said Sir Rowland would defend the suit.

Lady Hodge, as Countess Cathcart in 1926, was the principal figure in the famous "moral turpitude" case which stirred two continents, the Countess being denied entry to the United States because of her relations with the Earl of Craven.

The Countess had been divorced from the late Earl Cathcart in 1922, the Earl of Craven being named co-respondent. American immigration authorities held the Countess on Ellis Island on the grounds she had admitted "moral turpitude" in connection with her friendship for the Earl of Craven.

SNUB SMITH IN POLICE SHAKEUP

Director, Angry, Puts Reluctant O. K. On Changes

In shoving through the appointment of seven police inspectors, the Mayor handed Police Supt. Ben Marshall a complete victory over his nominal chief.

McNair told reporters after hearing Smith's objection:

The Mayor's decision came after Smith had refused to sign the list of new police inspectors presented to him this morning by Supt. Marshall. The list was prepared by McNair and Marshall without Smith being consulted.

'SITTING ON LID'

In fact, the Mayor thinks that Smith should leave the police to Marshall, the fire department to Chief John Heinz and the business inspections to George E. Evans. Asked what Smith would be expected to do after that, McNair said:

"Smith is just like I am. He's sitting on the lid and seeing that things don't blow up."

UNION BANKERS GET PRISON

CLEVELAND, March 31.—(AP.)—Alvanley Johnston, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and C. Stirling Smith were sentenced today to serve from one to 30 years in Ohio State Penitentiary for misapplication of funds and false entry linked with the failure of the closed Standard Trust Bank of Cleveland.

Johnston was a director and Smith was president of the institution, successor to the Brotherhood of Engineers Bank, which closed in 1931, two years before the bank crisis of last March.

The two are charged with misapplying $450,000 of the bank's funds. Incidental to this, the state charged, false entries were made in the bank's books.

RACKET FEUD SHOT KILLS WITNESS

Man Reported Listed For Court Case Slain in Dark

Racket guns blazed in Ross Township early today to seal the lips of a man reported to have been summoned as a witness in a liquor case or a lawsuit, according to deputy coroners.

His body—a bullet hole in the back—was found in Maple avenue, half a block from the home of his uncle, John Branon, and his aunt, Mrs. Mollie Matthews.

The body was found by the uncle, who told detectives he was en route to his home when he made the discovery.

CALLED IN CASE

According to Deputy Coroner James Dunley, who questioned Branon and the Matthews woman, Taylor had recently been summoned to testify in a liquor case. A checkup of records in Federal and Common Pleas courts revealed no cases in which Taylor had been called as a witness. County detectives were checking aldermen and justices of the peace.

Dunley said he had been informed that Taylor was a former chauffeur. Recently he was given employment by the Civil Works Administration.

Dunley said a search of the dead man's effects to find the court summons had been futile.

HAT ON HEAD

When found the body lay face downward. The victim's hat was still on his head. Gripped between his teeth was a stogie. Taylor evidently had been shot from ambush. On his forehead was a deep gash, apparently the result of his fall.

Taylor had not been seen since early yesterday.

Mrs. Matthews told detectives she thought she heard a shot shortly after 8 o'clock last night, but did not investigate.

Weirton Welfare Control Probed

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(AP.)—Complaints that the Weirton Steel Company controls welfare activities in Weirton, W. Va., have been investigated by Pierce Atwater, a representative of the Federal Relief Administration.

This was disclosed last night, but it was announced that the report of Atwater's findings has not yet been received by Harry L. Hopkins, administrator. It is expected in a day or two.

Marital Rift Denied By Dolores del Rio

HOLLYWOOD, March 31.—(AP.)—The dark-eyed screen beauty, Dolores del Rio, heard today there were reports in New York she and her husband, Cedric Gibbons, were contemplating a separation and divorce. The Mexican actress asserted:

Her Husband Trapped

MRS. SAMUEL INSULL . . . . . THE WIFE OF A FUGITIVE

The first photograph this year of Mrs. Insull, shown in Athens just after her husband had been allowed to leave Greece on his chartered vessel, the "Maiotis." He has been ordered arrested in Turkey. This is an International News Photograph Service picture.

GREECE AIDS FUGITIVE BY PROTEST

Demands to Know by What Right Ship Is Held

ISTANBUL, March 31.—(AP.)—Turkey today ordered the arrest of Samuel Insull, but the 74-year-old Chicago fugitive flatly refused a police request that he quit his floating haven, the tramp steamer Maiotis, which flies the flag of Greece.

It was Greece which gave him a year and a half's asylum from United States authorities who seek to try him on charges of grand larceny and embezzlement growing out of the collapse of his Mid-West Utilities companies.

The Turkish order followed a request by the United States government that Insull be arrested, but Insull, apparently, clung to the hope that the Greek flag would continue to give him protection.

Complications in Turko-Greek relations as a result of the incident were feared in some quarters, for Capt. Ioannis Mousouris, master of the Maiotis, protested to the Greek consul here against detention of his vessel in the Straits of the Bosporus, a "free" passage similar, according to law, to the Danube.

"INCIDENT" SEEN

It was even predicted that the Greek government might send a note to the Turkish government on the subject.

The Turkish police "requested" Insull to disembark and remain in either a hotel or hospital pending decision in his case.

Diplomatic circles were of the opinion that the question between Greece and Turkey would be settled amicably.

Capt. Mousouris said the police had asked to put an agent in Insull's cabin in order to prevent him from committing any desperate act, but that this request had been refused, although a police agent stayed continually on guard outside Insull's room.

PAPERS EXPECTED

Attorney General Kenan Bey said he expected the Istanbul penal court, which probably will give Insull a trial, was expecting to receive documents in the case momentarily. The penal court consists of three judges—a president and two assistants. The sessions may be secret or public according to the president's decision. The jury system does not exist in Turkey.

Insull's present status in Turkey is that of an alleged offender against United States laws whom

FOUR CONVICTED IN ARSON PLOT

Allegheny County's "Good Friday jury" returned guilty verdicts today against four men accused of attempting to set fire to Matty's Theater, Wilmerding, last July 4. The following men were convicted of attempted arson, conspiracy and possession of explosives:

The trial was probably the first in the history of Allegheny County courts in which a jury was kept in court on Good Friday.

Visiting Judge E. Orrin Waite, of Erie County, decided upon this procedure because Assistant District Attorney Jacob Kalson had asked at the start of the trial that the jury be locked up each night as in murder trials.

Wilmerding police testified they found Tonti and Cerese acting "suspiciously" near the theater July 4. Later, they said, they found two goatskins filled with gasoline under seats in the theater.

12TH AIR MAIL FLIER KILLED

DEWITT, Iowa, March 31.—(AP.)—Blinding rain and a perilously low ceiling sent Lieut. Thomas A. Wood, Army mail flier, hurtling to death on a farm near here, authorities said today. He was the twelfth Army flier to die since the fighting airmen received the order to carry the mails.

Lieut. Wood, flying an attack plane loaded with 500 pounds of mail from Chicago, crashed last night in the field of William Mommsen, farmer. So terrific was the impact that the flier, whose home station was San Antonio, Tex., was crushed between his motor and the 23 pouches of mail he carried.

His death was the first since the recent resumption of Army air mail carrying.

Ingrid's Troth to Danish Throne Heir Hinted

International News Service.

STOCKHOLM, March 31.—Rumors of the impending engagement of Princess Ingrid, daughter of Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf of Sweden, to Crown Prince Frederick of Denmark, were revived today.

Princess Ingrid, who has been linked romantically to both the Prince of Wales and his younger brother, Prince George, at present is in Cannes, France, with her grandfather, the Duke of Connaught.

Prince Frederick long ago fell in love with Ingrid, according to stories told in court circles, but was turned down because her heart was elsewhere—just where no one could say.

Now, according to rumor, Ingrid is rumored to feel differently about the heir to the Danish throne, with the Prince himself still desirous of making her his wife. Both King Christian and the Crown Prince are in favor of the match.

LEGISLATOR TO FIGHT OUSTER IN UTILITY EXPOSE

N. Y. SENATOR 'WON'T JOIN WALKER'

International News Service.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 31.—Senator Warren Thayer, Republican whip of the Senate, declared today he was ready to defend himself if an attempt is made to oust him from the Legislature because of his alleged connection with the utility interests. He said:

"I'm not going to resign. I'm not going to join Insull nor Jimmie Walker. I'm ready to defend myself before the bar of the Senate if that should be necessary."

Insisting he had "nothing to conceal," Senator Thayer made it plain he was deeply aroused over the declaration of Senator John J. McNaboe, New York Democrat, that he would offer two resolutions on Monday night—one to bring Thayer before the bar of the Senate, and the other for a sweeping investigation of the politico-legislative ramifications of utility corporations.

MAY GET ADVANTAGE

It is possible Senator Thayer will "get the jump" on his critics at the session of the Senate Monday night by rising to a point of high personal privilege to explain the letters allegedly written by him and made public by the Federal Trade Commission at Washington. These letters appeared to place the stamp of a utility lobbyist on Senator Thayer.

Senator Thayer admitted he has "rendered some services" to the Associated Gas and Electric Company, which purchased the Chasm Power Company founded by him, but he insists he is prepared to defend every transaction as legitimate.

UTILITY BILL INQUIRY

Questioned about a letter allegedly written by him concerning certain utility bills which were killed in the Senate Public Service Commission, when he was chairman of that committee, Senator Thayer said:

"I will have plenty to say about that later on."

Republican legislative leaders, according to reports today, will confer at the Capitol before the session opens Monday night on what, if any, action they should take as a result of the disclosures by the Federal Trade Commission. Some of the G. O. P. leaders are said to feel certain that Senator Thayer can explain the letter, while others are convinced that an investigation will have to be ordered.

CODE REVISION PLAN PUSHED

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(AP.)—All coded industries were instructed by NRA today to create labor relations boards of their own immediately.

Simultaneously Hugh S. Johnson announced that as soon as advisers submit nominations, he will appoint labor and consumer advisers to assist the government members of each coded industry.

The double move was a key step in the process of NRA code revision which began in late February with the criticism forum and assembly of code authorities.

The labor relations boards, to handle both individual complaints and general labor disputes within a plant or an entire industry, will be made up of an equal number of industrialists and labor representatives, with a neutral chairman. Nearly 400 industries now are under codes.

Strike Conferees Fail to Agree

Strikers of the William Penn Hotel today were awaiting an answer from the management on a proposition made yesterday that the hotel rehire at once about 60 per cent of the employes who struck two months ago, and that the vacancies be filled only from the ranks of the strikers.

Representatives of both factions met yesterday but reached no decision.

and the present wage scale was problematical. One operator said:

"We'll be able to tell better Tuesday morning."

It was explained miners all over the country probably will take a holiday Monday in observance of "Mitchell Day," and in celebration of the thirty-sixth anniversary of the eight-hour day.

BATTLE LOOMS

Opposition to shorter working hours in the industry was expected to crystallize at today's session of the code conference at which the Recovery Administration had promised to announce its policy with reference to the proposed code amendments.

Appealing for speedy action by the administration, John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers, told the conference the agreement was the "best ever negotiated in the coal industry" and that its extension to the whole industry represented the sentiment of President Roosevelt.

Captive Mine Problem Adds to Coal Crisis

With hopes of an amicable agreement on the bituminous coal code for commercial mines expressed in Washington, the question of what the captive mine group would do was being raised here today.

There was no indication that the captive mine operators would follow the lead of some commercial owners in putting in force the seven-hour day and $5 basic wage, which amounted to an increase of from 10 to 20 per cent over the old scale.

Thomas Moses, president of the H. C. Frick Coke Company, declined to express himself. In the past, captive mine operators have looked to Mr. Moses and his company for leadership.

What might happen Monday if a new agreement were not immediately forthcoming was only a matter of conjecture. Some talk of strike was heard, but it was not believed that a general strike movement had gotten under way.

RAIL BATTLE UP TO ROOSEVELT

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—A stalemate having been reached in the negotiations between the railroad managements and the railway labor unions over wages, Joseph B. Eastman, federal coordinator of transportation, named by President Roosevelt to mediate the differences between the two groups, indicated today the dispute probably would have to await the return of the President from his Florida fishing trip. Eastman said:

"While I would not say the present differences of opinion are irreconsilable, it is clear to me that I cannot compose them as long as there is possibility of appeal to higher authority. While I shall not abandon the role of mediator, it is probable a settlement of the controversy will have to await the return of the President."

Eastman said the fact should be emphasized there is no present prospect of a strike.

CANDIDATE ONLY ON ONE TICKET

Jacob L. Shulgold, candidate for the Republican congressional nomination in the Thirty-third district, has corrected an impression that he was running also in the Democratic primary. Pointing out that no Democratic petitions had been circulated for him, and noting Harrisburg reports that he was filed in both primaries, Shulgold has written the Bureau of Elections declaring that he is a candidate only on the Republican ticket.

Congressman Henry Ellenbogen, seeking re-election in this district, has been indorsed by Maj. Gen. Adelbert Cronkhite, former commander of the Eightieth Division. Ellenbogen, the Army man said, has been a staunch friend of all ex-service men, and his re-election is recommended "to help promote our welfare as a nation."

Charles M. Schenecker has announced as a candidate for the Democratic congressional nomination in the Thirty-fourth district. He is a construction engineer and pledged to support the Roosevelt policies. Schenecker belongs to many fraternal organizations and was one of the first graduates from Carnegie Tech.

VETS WILL GET CHECKS MAY 1

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(AP.)—War veterans benefiting from the independent offices bill will receive their government checks on May 1 and government employes will get their pay increases by April 14.

The veterans' administration today continued study of the bill passed over President Roosevelt's veto. About 100 million dollars annually will go to veterans, the largest portion being destined for 29,000 "presumptive" disability cases from the World War.

Meanwhile a possibility developed of payment early in April of the 5 per cent restoration of government salaries which the law declared should be retroactive to February 1.

'CUT YOUR PAY,' M'NAIR TELLS PINCHOT

Mayor, Firm in Keeping Own Full Stipend, Asks State Slash

Mayor McNair, after standing firm in his decision not to refund a portion of his $15,000 salary, has written to Gov. Pinchot suggesting cuts in the salaries of state officials.

McNair declares that the salary of the Governor should be cut before a new one takes office, thereby avoiding legal technicalities.

The Mayor, who is a candidate for Governor, urges that Pinchot include the salary subject in his call and discuss it with other gubernatorial candidates.

URGES SPEEDY DECISION

The letter, in part, reads:

"Unless this is done the people may not have relief from the high cost of state government. Because of the present economic conditions, I tried to have my own salary as Mayor reduced before taking office. The legislative body of the city, however, refused to obey my recommendations, finding themselves restricted by legal provisions.

"I would suggest that you consult the other candidates for Governor and see if they cannot concur in this proposal, for now is the time to take action, especially with the state elections coming on, and not after they are elected, when talk of this kind is useless."

BALKS AT REFUND

Council did refuse the Mayor's offer to cut his salary $5,000, but there are no obstacles in the way of his making a refund to the City Treasurer, similar to those being made by members of Council.

The Mayor's attitude toward a cut is:

"Let Council do it by ordinance."

The Superintendent then ushered his seven inspectors into Smith's office to be sworn in, but Smith refused to perform the ceremony in his office, tell Marshall:

"I'll be over in your office after while."

FIRE CHANGES MADE

Changes were also announced today in the fire department by Chief Heinz. They include promotion of three hosemen to fire captains, the transfer of three captains, and the reinstatement of four firemen as hosemen.

The hosemen promoted are: George Walsh, to Company No. 45; John M. Angelo, to Company No. 14; John Doyle, to Company No. 46. Captains transferred are: Louis E. Brown, from Company No. 53 to Company No. 44; Edward J. Kearney, from Company No. 8 to Company No. 29; John A. McCabe, from Company No. 46 to Company No. 11.

Those reinstated are: Delos Harvey, to Company No. 5;;; Henry S. Allen, to Company No. 9; Clyde Moore, to Company No. 7; Henry S. Lejunne, to Company No. 57.

Reports of a wide-spread shakeup in the police department are not expected to materialize. Instead, McNair and his police heads have adopted a "stagger" system to keep expenditures of the department within the budget.

The first list of policemen, including five lieutenants, matrons, turnkeys, precinct detectives and a few policemen who will be asked to take a "payless" 30-day furlough will be made known today.

Others will be asked to take similar "lay-offs" twice monthly until the entire department is involved.

WOMAN LIEUTENANT

The appointment of a woman as lieutenant in the police department—the first in the history of Pittsburgh—was discussed, but no decision reached.

The appointment, however, will be made sometime next week, and the appointee assigned to the Missing Persons Bureau. The selection it is understood, lay between Mrs. Ida Rickenbrode, of the Fifth Ward, and Mrs. Rae Connelly, of the Twenty-second Ward. Mrs. Rickenbrode, a veteran police woman has been acting head of the bureau since the resignation of Detective Michael Feeney a year ago. Mrs. Connelly was appointed to the department a month ago.

REPLACE CAPTAINS

The new inspectors will replace the 14 police captains now in charge of the various police districts. The inspector system, restored under the new salary bill, was dropped during the administration of the late Mayor Charles H. Kline.

INSULL REFUSES TO SURRENDER

the American government has asked the Turkish government to hand over. The Turkish government, acting on the basis of the Turkish penal code, submitted the American request to Kenan Bey, who was to submit it to the penal court here.

CAN SUMMON INSULL

The court's function is to decide whether the alleged offense is, according to Turkish law, of either a political or military nature and whether the alleged offender is of foreign nationality. The court may require the presence of Insull to establish the latter point.

The court will then transmit its decision on these two points to Kenan Bey. The Turkish government may then proceed to take action on the American request.

According to Article 9, of the code, if the court finds the alleged offense of either a political or military nature, according to Turkish law, or finds the alleged offender of Turkish nationality, it would refuse the Turkish government the right to give Insull up.

KEMAL GETS PROTEST

ATHENS, March 31.—(AP.)—The Greek government today asked its legation at Ankara, Turkey, to demand of the Turkish government what justification it has for holding the Greek S. S. Maiotis, Samuel Insull's haven, at Istanbul.

This threat of international difficulties between Greece and Turkey comes at a time when the two nations have been particularly friendly. But a strong feeling was evident here that the Turkish action in holding the Maiotis was unwarranted.

ASK EXTENSION OF CAR ROUTES

Street car routes 86, 88 and 95 should be extended to Sixth street for a 90-day trial period to correct the "short looping" of these lines, a citizens' committee advised the Pittsburgh Railways Company yesterday.

Fred C. Schatz, of the Joseph Horne Company, told a meeting of the Better Traffic Committee's sub-committee on flow:

"You have no right to close your eyes to the demands of 10,000 citizens who have signed petitions demanding that the Lawrenceville, Homewood, East Liberty and Wilkinsburg cars be brought down to Sixth street instead of short looping at Ninth street."

Labor Union Here Replies to Critics

The NRA has been thwarted by the failure of some employers to co-operate, according to a statement issued last night by the Pittsburgh Central Labor Union, pointing out the necessity for stronger national legislation for the protection of workers. The Wagner bill with its ban on "company unions" and the Connery bill, which would compel industry to adopt a 30-hour week were indorsed. Leaders said the statement was in reply to criticisms by industrial leaders of the American Federation of Labor and its representatives.

WIRT STRIKES AGAIN AT 'RED' 'BRAIN TRUST'

Gary Educator Cites Recent Books by Wallace, Tugwell

GARY, Ind., March 31.—(AP.)—Dr. William A. Wirt, educator, struck again today at the unnamed "brain-trusters" he accused of planning a governmental revolution, with a new statement declaring:

"We haven't seen anything yet."

Quoting from recent books by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace and his assistant, Dr. Rexford Tugwell, the Gary school superintendent said it was "evident that one step is leading to another" in the "revolution."

Referring to Secretary Wallace's book, "America Must Choose," published in February, 1934, Dr. Wirt said:

'BAREST BEGINNING'

"'As yet we have applied in this country only the barest beginnings of this sort of social discipline which a completely determined nationalism requires.'"

"On pages 21 and 22 I quote the following:

"'Our people on the street and on the soil must change their attitude concerning the nature of men and the nature of human society. They must develop the capacity to envision a co-operative objective and be willing to pay the price to attain it.

"'Enduring social transformation, such as our new deal, is impossible of realization without changed human hearts.'"

CALLS 'ORDER' BIG

Dr. Wirt called this a "big order." He said Wallace did not attempt that "if we want to attain the objective we must pay the price. He continued:

"Thus, if we fail to change human hearts we must inevitably fail in our new deal enterprises.

"I quote from page 32: 'It would be unfair not to point out that a steadfast national allegiance to any fixed cause requires a certain degree of regimented opinion.

"'And yet I do not feel that the public opinion behind such a program would have to be straitjacketed as much as it would have to be under pure nationalism. You would not have to impose as many unwelcome restraints on as many people.'"

Wirt continues:

"Thus we come to the stage in our revolution where we must restrict free speech.

TUGWELL QUOTED

"Dr. Rexford Tugwell in his recent book, 'Our Economic Society and Its Problems,' points out that the communists argue that the new society can be secured only by force.

"He also points out that Russia shows us that planning can succeed. He regrets, however, that in Russia they did have a great amount of suppression and that even today, after 17 years, the middle classes 'are deprived of certain civil rights.'"

'Short, Snappy,' Wirt Hearing Leaders' Plan

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(AP.)—Democratic managers planned today to make the House inquiry into charges by Dr. William A. Wirt as nearly short and snappy as possible.

Several Republican members, on the other hand, hoped to extend the investigation a bit. They have objected to limiting the inquiry strictly to the anti-brain trust accusations by the Gary (Ind.) school superintendent.

Congress Heads Expect To Adjourn May 15

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(AP.)—Congressional leaders for the first time spoke with real confidence today of May 15 as the date for adjournment of the Seventy-third Congress.

Since Congress convened in January, administration leaders have talked of winding up the session in mid-May, but, as new legislative demands continued to pour down from the White House, their tone obviously was heavier with hope rather than confidence.

Their assurance today was based on the final settlement during the past week of the long deadlock over veterans' appropriations, House approval of the tariff bill and the Senate's passage of the Bankhead cotton legislation.

One of President Roosevelt's closest advisors said privately today the only remaining bills looked upon as "absolutely necessary" are the final appropriation measures, the tax, tariff and stock market regulation bills, and a measure, yet to be introduced, providing new public works funds.

He said President Roosevelt had no further legislative proposals in mind, with the possible exception of a new tax bill to cover the expenditures for veterans and federal employes, voted over his veto.

Miss Carr Urges Steps To Meet CWA Loss

HARRISBURG, March 31.—(AP.)—Miss Charlotte E. Carr, Secretary of Labor and Industry, offers three proposals to relieve unemployment conditions she believes will be more serious with end of the civil works program.

Reporting that 731,569 persons in Pennsylvania were out of work on February 15, Miss Carr yesterday said the figure would have been 980,467 had it not been for CWA and other made-work projects.

Expressing the opinion that the new work program, in which jobs will be given on the basis of need for relief rather than on the fitness of the individual for the position, she stated "only three factors" will help remedy the situation. These she listed as:

"Strict compliance with NRA codes, under which 90 per cent of Pennsylvania's major industries are now nominally operating.

"An increase in made-work projects, which is unlikely due to increased federal appropriation and the lack of state funds.

"Further spreading of employment in private enterprise through the shortening of hours or other means."

ROME CELEBRATES HOLY SATURDAY, MARKING END OF LENT

500 CHURCHES TAKE PART IN SERVICES

Joyous Church Bells Herald Festivities Of Easter Morn

ROME, March 31.—(AP.)—Paschal candles were lighted in nearly 500 churches and basilicas this morning as priests and laymen alike celebrated Holy Saturday.

Church bells, silent since Holy Thursday, rang out, sacred images somberly draped in commemoration of Christ's passion and death were uncovered, and joyful organ music once again was allowed to resound through the churches.

The ceremonies marked the end of the 40-day Lenten mourning. Today's services held a note of joyful anticipation for tomorrow's anniversary of Christ's resurrection.

Cardinal Pacelli lighted the Easter fire in St. Peter's this morning by striking sparks from a flint. The "new fire," as it is called, was suggestive of the resurrection.

The Pope's paschal candle measured eight feet high and three inches in diameter. It was blessed by Cardinal Pacelli, who conducted the Vatican Holy Saturday mass and imparted benediction with relics said to have been connected with Christ's passion and death.

The day was one of rejoicing throughout the land. Priests went from house to house of the faithful, blessing portals and rooms with holy water.

In many houses families followed the tradition of laying out the food for Easter banquets on groaning tables. In these cases, the food was blessed. The ordination of many students, numbers of them foreigners, took place this morning according to custom.

DEATH CURTAIN ENDS NEW ROLE FOR ACTOR

Hospital Play Doctor Dies as Premiere Is Ready

CLEVELAND, March 31.—(AP.)—For a week Robert Hyman had been rehearsing in a hospital play in which illness and death were simulated. He took the part of the oldest doctor, dependably, competently in keeping with a record of many years' service in the theater.

Today at the hour when he was to don his surgeon's gown to play at saving lives, Hyman took the piece out of the realm of fiction by expiring in a hotel room across from the theater where his fellow actors waited for his appearance.

When he failed to answer repeated calls, friends broke in the door to find him dead with an opened box of pills nearby. The pills, a remedy for stomach ills, suggested stoppage of the heart had followed an attack of indigestion.

Hyman had been a leading man in stock for many years. He had played in Minneapolis, Chicago, St. Louis and other cities. One of his late appearances was in "The Animal Kingdom" and another in a stock performance of "The Shanghai Gesture," which he played with Florence Reed. He was a member of the Lambs Club.

Previously he had been in vaudeville with his wife, Virginia Mann. They had never been separated until Hyman came to Cleveland for this engagement, and it was planned to bring Mrs. Hyman here to act with her husband later.

Seldom on Broadway, Hyman was known as a good actor who could make a role live, almost regardless of its nature. His home was at Floral Park, Long Island. He was 49 years old.

OHIO FUGITIVE CONVICT SHOT IN CAPTURE

Neal Bowman Cringes In Fear of Life Sentence

International News Service.

SOMERSET, Ky., March 31.—While federal authorities today studied the possibility of placing charges again him, Neal Bowman, 30-year-old desperado and escaped Ohio convict, served notice he would fight extradition to the Buckeye state. He said:

"I'd rather stand trial in Kentucky. If they send me back to Ohio, I'll spend the rest of my life in jail."

He was in jail under heavy guard today as the result of his capture at a rural filling station near here yesterday afternoon in a brief but fierce gun battle in which he encountered Police Chief J. P. Jaspir, of Somerset, and Capt. George Blaydes, of the Pulaska County police. Bowman opened fire when the officers approached his parked car.

With Bowman was Stanley Mercer, 20-year-old Kentuckian, who Bowman said he picked up last Tuesday. Bowman was wounded in his right arm and in the back of his head and Mercer was shot in the left cheek.

The captured fugitive from Lima Hospital for the Criminal Insane admitted a long series of crimes, but denied he had killed or injured anyone.

He fled to Kentucky after forcing his way past guards by means of a smuggled pistol at Lima prison and scaling a well last Christmas Day, he said, and since then has returned to Ohio only once. That trip was for three or four days about January 10.

In that sortie, he confessed, he kidnaped Sheriff Partee Dallofolis, drove 50 miles to Cambridge, held up a motorist there and robbed an oil station at Zanesville. He said he freed the Sheriff unharmed and did not even take $50 he found in the officer's pockets.

SHOT ACCIDENT, SAYS YOUTH

PETERSBURG, Ind., March 31.—(AP.)—Ward Davis, 20, former high school track star, today told Coroner Charles E. Jones that the shooting of Miss Annavieve France, his school days sweetheart, was an accident.

The 16-year-old girl was found shot to death Thursday in an automobile in which she had been riding with Davis. Said Jones:

"He told me he shot the girl, but he added that it was accidental. He refused to talk further until he had consulted an attorney."

Schoolmates said Davis and Miss France were close friends until he graduated and went last fall to the University of Alabama. Ward returned after a term at the southern school. During his absence, they added, the friendship of Miss France waned and when the athlete returned she paid him little attention.

ROOSEVELT OUT FOR BONEFISH

MIAMI, Fla., March 31.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt was away from land again today, fishing in well-chosen waters of the Bahamas for the gamest of fish, bonefish.

He dropped into harbor yesterday at Nassau, capital of the British Bahamas, amid salutes from a cruiser of the English navy, but did not land.

American sailors aboard the accompanying destroyer Ellis manned the rails and dipped the flag. The President later received Gov. Bede Clifford, of the islands, aboard ship.

He and his party were well out to sea by nightfall and today were casting about for big game.

PICKFORD SCARE CAUSE OF SUIT

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, March 31.—Mary Pickford's precipitate flight from Boston to escape a "kidnaping" last month had its aftermath in a suit against her in Supreme Court here, it was disclosed today.

The suit came to light when Justice Cohn ordered J. Raymond Cornell, Wellesley, Mass., piano salesman, to post bond of $250 because he was a resident of another state. No details of the suit were revealed.

Miss Pickford's flight occurred in February. Fearful that two persons who called at her hotel in Boston were kidnapers, she packed hastily and sought refuge here.

When the story was published, Miss Eylda Moody, Boston metaphysicist, and Cornell declared they had called on the actress to interest her in a religious doctrine.

ERIE MUSICIAN, WIFE SLAIN

GREENSBORO, N. C., March 31.—(AP.)—Victor Nelson, a radio musician, who came here two weeks ago from Chicago, and Mrs. Nelson were found shot to death in their apartment here last night.

Police said a .25-caliber automatic pistol was found lying under Mrs. Nelson's right hand. She had a bullet hole through her right temple, while her husband had been shot in the head and near the heart.

The couple had been dead for several hours, Coroner W. W. Harvey said, after a preliminary investigation. He said officers were working on a theory of murder and suicide.

R. H. Floyd, who employed Nelson for work at a local radio station, said the couple's home was in Erie, Pa. No theory was advanced to account for the tragedy.

NEW YORK, March 31.—New York police today joined in the search for Eunice Pollock, pretty 20-year-old University of Wisconsin student, who disappeared from Madison, Wis., on St. Patrick's Day.

White's wife died several years ago and he lived with his sister. His better known books were favorably reviewed by critics.

"Matrimony," published several years ago, was his latest volume. It was an account of his own married life.

"Lunkundoo," a horror story, was included in a volume of the best works of its kind, and a work originally published in 1919, "The Song of Sirens, and Other Stories," has recently been reprinted.

According to testimony at the hearing, the woman was found last night by Henry H. Slocum, a son, in the kitchen of his home.

He said he had directed letters to a number of stores asking owners if they were violating the law, and that he would expose them, whether or not they answered his letters.

Father Coakley declared that he had affidavits that contraceptive articles and devices are being advertised, displayed and sold in many drugstores in East Liberty in violation of the state laws, an abstract of which he enclosed in his letters to the druggists.

ROBBERS FAIL TO REPEAT

Safe crackers paid a return visit to Coscia Brothers Company, leather dealers, at 110 Market street, last night, but were frightened away when a burglar alarm sounded as they neared the same safe from which $700 was taken in a burglary two years ago.

Scores of policemen and detectives surrounded the district within a few minutes after the alarm. Seaching a dozen buildings in the neighborhood, they found no trace of the thieves. Earlier, a parking station attendant had reported seeing two men enter a building.

On the second floor of Coscia Brothers' store, police found two holes dug from a vacant building adjoining. One was near the elevator shaft and the second within two feet of where robbers had entered the building two years ago.

Entrance to the vacant building was made through a trap door. It was believed the thieves escaped by fleeing over several roofs and then to a storage room at 206-08 Market street, where the front door was found unlocked.

First Lady Substitute In Easter Festivities

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(AP.)—Easter at the White House won't be the typical Roosevelt family holiday, with the President away—so Mrs. Roosevelt may dash off for a picnic.

Franklin, Jr., isn't coming home, she pointed out, because he's trying for the freshman crew at Harvard, and wants to save his holidays for times when his father will be home. James Roosevelt is with his father on the southern cruise.

Still another young Roosevelt, John, now convalescing from an appendicitis operation, failed to fill the White House up with his guests, as has been his holiday custom. That leaves a family group small enough for Mrs. Roosevelt's favorite pastime—picnicking.

However, there's the usual Easter stir about the place. Trees are being sprayed, awnings put up, the south grounds prepared for Monday's Easter egg rolling. Mrs. Roosevelt surveyed the scene yesterday from the south portico, and made practical suggestions on arrangements.

Easter eggs are, of course, being boiled and colored for grandchildren "Sistie" and "Buzzie."

While her husband is away, Mrs. Roosevelt is to sub for him in traditional Easter public appearances. This afternoon, in his stead, she planned to plant cedars of Lebanon in Arlington Cemetery. Tomorrow morning she'll attend the sunrise Easter service there, marked last year by President Roosevelt's presence in a pouring rain.

On Monday, Mrs. Roosevelt will have the whole responsibility of the Easter egg rolling.

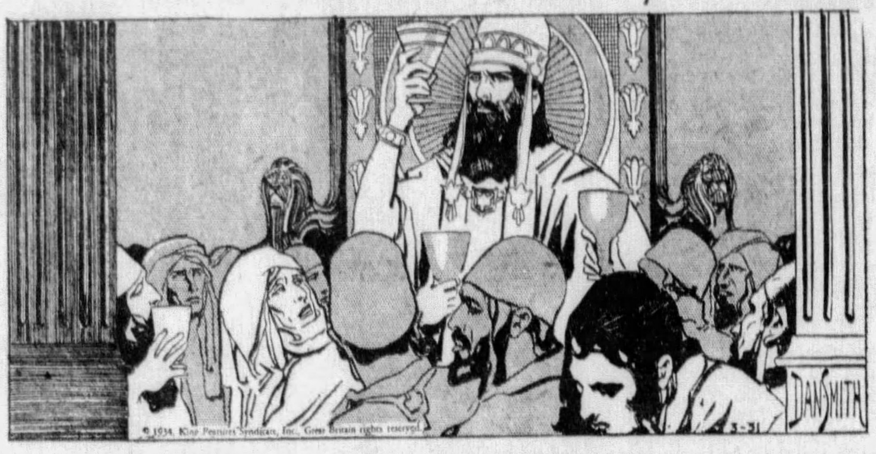
Easter Cantata On 'Army' Program

Throughout Allegheny County at every Salvation Army corps citadel, there will be a morning and evening service tomorrow with special sermons and musical programs featuring each service. The outstanding feature of the day will be the presentation of the Easter cantata, "Hillside and Garden," in the auditorium of the Salvation Army Building, 425 Boulevard of the Allies.

The Story of Solomon -:- CHAPTER III -:- Told in Pictures by Dan Smith

And when the ark of the covenant which the Lord had made when he brought the children of Israel out of Egypt had been set up in the temple, King Solomon stood before the altar and prayed to the Lord.

And the same day, when he had made an end of praying in the temple, King Solomon hallowed the middle court before the house of the Lord, and there he offered up burnt offerings and meat offerings.



Then, after the temple had been dedicated to the Lord, King Solomon summoned all Israel to feast with him, and there was a great congregation at the feast, all the way "from the entering in of Hamath unto the river of Egypt." For fourteen days they feasted, and when the feast ended the people went to their tents joyful of heart, and they blessed the king, and were glad for all the goodness the Lord had done for Israel.

GROUPS TO HOLD SUNRISE PRAYERS

For the first time churches of the North Side and the North Boroughs are holding a union Easter sunrise service at 7 a. m. tomorrow on Observatory Hill, Riverview Park. Forming a large cross on the hillside, the Swift Mission Brigade will open the service by sounding the call to assembly.

In case of rain the services will be held in the Watson Memorial Presbyterian Church, Perrysville and Riverview avenues.

BERLIN BISHOP SCORES NAZIS

BERLIN, March 31.—(AP.)—Without specifically naming them, Bishop Nicholas Bares, in a Good Friday sermon of usual gravity delivered in St. Hedwigh's Roman Catholic Cathedral, referred to recent Nazi ultra-racialist publications as "propaganda of Satan."

The cathedral was crowded to the doors and Dr. Bares, the new Bishop of Berlin, spoke with great emphasis about the alleged pagan literature now being distributed to the people.

Bishop Bares warned that if the blessing of the church should be rejected, darkness and destruction would fall upon the land. He said:

"May the human institutions be crushed with an iron hand; the church will triumph in the end for whosoever opposes God shall be damned forever."

His sermon was regarded with much interest in view of the present tension existing between the church and the state of Germany.

SERMONETTE PORTRAYS EASTER

The Rev. Dr. C. Marshall Muir, of the Bellefield Presbyterian Church, Fifth and Bellefield avenues, gives the final Lenten sermonette today, using as his subject, "Why Do We Have Easter?" The sermonettes have been published in the Sun-Telegraph during the Lenten season under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Council of Churches.

Text: Matthew 26:39. "And Jesus went a little farther."

Why do we have Easter?

When Jesus went into the Garden of Gethsemane to pray, it is said that He went a little farther than His companions. This was true throughout His brief life. Jesus went a little farther than anyone else has ever gone. That is why we have Easter.

Jesus went a little farther in His moral insights. He taught, "Ye have heard that it was said, Thou shalt love thy neighbor, and hate thine enemy: but I say unto you, Love your enemies, and pray for them that persecute you!"

Jesus went a little farther in seeing the best that is in people.

THE REV. C. MARSHALL MUIR

He knew a Prodigal Son might go into a far country and waste his substance in riotous living, but he also believed that such a person had it in him to "come to himself" and return to his father, asking forgiveness.

Jesus went a little farther in comradeship with God. He told His disciples that whoever had seen Him at work had seen the Father. "I and my Father are one," he said. That is what gave him conquering courage.

Jesus went a little farther in active goodwill toward men. It is said of him that "he went about doing good." Doing good for burdened men led him at last to the Cross. No one has ever gone further than that.

Jesus went a little farther in the adventure of death. He met death in such a way that he triumphed over it. As he told his disciples, "I will come again!" And He did, as an active, vitalizing personality in the lives of men and women. That is the meaning of the Resurrection.

And that is why we have Easter. In every moral and spiritual adventure men may choose. Jesus goes still farther. "Who follows in his train?"

SPEAK UP, SISTERS!

Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance

By MARION BRUNOT

Two Co-Eds Find Problem In Boy Dinner Guests

Feeding the boy friend!

Do you do it? Or do you meet him on the corner, or let his gasoline do the entertaining? Or do you go to the movies and sit beside him, and softly hold hands when the lights are low and when the hero and heroine fall into each others' arms?

Here is a letter from two co-eds. They are facing this EAT problem. Alone in the big city of Pittsburgh, and they are afraid they will be talked about. That ever is a query with the fair sex. Being TALKED ABOUT. As if tongues wouldn't wag anyway. Idle tongues that get their mess of words from other people's antics.

Dear Miss Brunot:

We are two co-eds. Here in Pittsburgh. We live in an apartment authorized by the school and close to our place of education. In order to avoid extreme boredoom and loneliness, we have invited fellows to our apartment to have dinner with us. And occasionally we play bridge. They accept, and seem to think our invitation gives them special privileges.

This is what we do not like.

At home our mothers allowed us to entertain, and why can't we do it here.

One fellow even went so far as to say he would have welcomed such an invitation in his first year. What did he mean?

NEVER HAD CHAPERON

Of course we do not have a chaperon, but we never had one at home.

One fellow even said he had scruples in accepting such an invitation. But when we asked him for them, he evaded an answer. We do not consider ourselves entirely void of feminine charm, and we CAN COOK.

We can't see anything DARING in our invitations. We indulge in no dissipation whatsoever. I suppose we should be pouring over Latin and chemistry in the evenings, but often the spirit is weak.

Thanking you, we await your answer. CO-EDS.

Personally, I think, my dear co-eds, your guests should feel honored in such an invitation. Imagine being invited to a nice clean apartment, and to partake of good home-made cooking, and being a male student! I can't see where the "scruples" could come in. But I quite see why the young man evaded an answer. He had none, you might want to hear.

Maybe you asked the wrong young man. Perhaps they were on a diet, and were afraid of over-stuffing. Or maybe they had "dates" elsewhere.

Of course there is an old idea prevalent enough to be accepted by many. That the girl who feeds a man loses him . . . Men are self-assertive creatures, and they do like to do the courting, even in this year 1934. A man also feels under obligations to girls who entertain him, and go to much labor about it.

TOO CONCEITED

I think the young fellow who said he would have enjoyed this treat in his first year when he was lonely, was very rude. And don't invite him again. Also any man who would take undue privileges when invited but for a meal, is too conceited for me. And should be for you, sister.

Sitting on Mission swings and listening to what the average young man has to say is enough energy expended for most girls. It isn't as essential as one might think to stew over the stove for him. He may expect enough of that later on, if his intentions are serious.

These are the days of outdoor entertainment. Baseball games, hiking, or driving, these are phases of modern pleasure. And well worth the participation.

Yet for the life of me, just why young men don't appreciate a lamb stew or better, I can't see. It should open the way very decoriously for Cupid.

You do not need a chaperon for such parties. The fact that you live in a building approved by the faculty seems sufficient.

-o- -o-

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

until -- this one
Astrid said "no" three times before she said "yes"

Miss America, represented prettily by Sally, blonde, and Sue, dark, looks again at Queen Astrid. Sue dark, we will say, of about the darkness of Princess—still princess in this picture, you see—Astrid of Sweden.

This is an apt moment, we think, to speak a little about the coloring of this pretty little queen. And it is authentic; not based entirely upon photographs, as many times we artists who have never been "the world over" are obliged to do with our efforts. No; the Swedish Consulate was carefully questioned for a perfect picture of Astrid of Belgium and Sweden, and one who has long known her and often spoken with her drew this portrait.

Light blue, beautiful eyes, pink and white skin, and dark brown hair with a glint of red. This is the little girl princess grown up. And democratic! Don't forget.

Perhaps that was why she chose her prince herself. And chose so well. Princess Astrid, fancy-free before the wealthiest and most simply reared Prince in Europe came wooing, was reported again and again to be engaged to the Prince of Here and the Prince of There.

The Prince of Wales, the last word in Prince Charmings in the minds of half the girls in the world for years and years, blond, courtly, so loved by his own and many other countries that he has always been affectionately called "Davie" or "Eddie" Windsor, was delicately hinted at as a suitor. He went a-visiting to Astrid's father's castle and was warmly entertained. BUT he took his brother along. WHICH was it? It turned out to be just a visit from two charming young men to the people of a charming young girl, so far as we can know.

Prince Olaf of Norway was whispered as the lucky young man. And others. All princes of the blood, of course.

But if it was true that all these handsome young princes were suitors for the hand of the pretty Swedish princess, then she must have shaken her head to them all, been allowed by her enlightened family to shake it—and waited until the right prince came along.

And he did, carrying his own luggage! About the most eligible Prince Charming of Europe. Good-looking in a lean, blond way. Clever—as witness his courtship, if no other manifestation of wit. Wealthy. Beloved by his people. He came carrying his own luggage on many visits. Not the first time, for this first visit, as was due a Princess, though informal, was marked by the slight show of a small suite.

His first dinner with the family at Fridhjem was small, informal, its only glitter that of crystal and silver—glitter the young prince was accustomed to. But it was marked by something else that took his heart for good. The menu was planned by demure young Astrid! And the salad! It was nothing less than personally prepared by her own white hands!

Leopold came back for lunch next day!

And he came back again and again, for more orange and endive salad, for cake—and for the joy of being with the girl he had fallen in love with!

Their courtship was the "falling in love" of just "boy and girl." There was no cold and inhuman ceremony, such as has marked many a piteous union of young royalties, empty of happy companionship, and young love. Often, to avoid gossip, Prince Leopold traveled to Sweden third-class, carrying his luggage just as John and Jim over here do when they can get way for a visit to Dorothy or Betty's home town.

When visitors unexpectedly arrived, Leopold was hidden in the garret by his princess. In fact, the villagers took it for granted that there was a new young butler or pantryman at the castle of Prince Carl and Princess Ingeborg!

They played tennis together. Together they slipped from the "back-door" and went off skiing through the blue and white world of Sweden-in-winter-time. There were delightful mornings in the kitchen over Astrid's cooking. Did Leopold exclaim over the delicious aroma of her cake, hot out of the oven? Did he console her when one "fell?" You know he did! Very much Boy and Girl! Yet very much Prince and Princess in true fairy-tale style. The anouncement of their engagement was cheered both in Sweden and in Belgium! Their romance had the approval of their immediate world, high and low. They do say that Astrid said "No" three times before she said "Yes." Because—ONLY because, it is said—she was afraid of being a queen! — NELL BRINKLEY.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Well-Planned Coup

The word "coup" in the language of Bridge and Whist has a specialized meaning. This word, a French one, originally meant a stratagem or unusually brilliant play, but not all brilliant plays at the Bridge table are "coups," although many of the coups are brilliant in their planning and require exact timing to assure success.

One of the most familiar forms of the coup is the trump coup, which may be used when the Declarer finds the opponent on his right with an honor in trumps which, because the Dummy holds no more trumps to afford another lead through, is apparently uncapturable, and when the Declarer himself holds so many trumps that unless he uses them for ruffing purposes he will in time be forced to lead up to the adverse honor and thus concede a trick.

Recently at a bridge club in New York, where social leaders and leaders of the world of finance and business meet the world's leading Bridge experts at the card table, Mrs. Nancy Mills, playing the South hand below, faultlessly executed a coup of the above type and thus fulfilled her contract to take all the tricks.

West, Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.

	♠ A K J 6 ♡ 6 5 ◇ A K 8 2 ♣ 6 4 3
♠ Q 10 ♡ — ◇ J 10 9 7 ♣ A K J 10 8 7 2	North West East South	♠ 8 7 3 2 ♡ Q 9 8 4 ◇ Q 4 ♣ Q 9 5
	♠ 9 5 4 ♡ A K J 10 7 3 2 ◇ 6 5 3 ♣ —

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♣ (1)	1 ♠ (2)	Pass	3 ♡ (3)
4 ♣	4 ◇ (4)	Pass	5 ♣ (5)
Pass	5 ♡ (6)	Pass	6 ♡ (7)
Pass	Pass	7 ♣ (8)	7 ♡ (9)
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—Four or five clubs would be a better bid. The Pre-emptive call would have made it hard for North and South to reach their best contract.

2—As the Simple Overcall, when vulnerable, shows a strong hand, and as North is not well prepared for a heart response, he does not double.

5—In view of North's two bids and her own strong suit, Mrs. Mills rightly decides to try for a Slam.

6—North, of course, must bid, and since he cannot rebid spades or diamonds, raises the hearts.

7—An obvious and correct call.

8—East fears that six hearts can be made, but he does not believe that seven can, so he seeks to push the opponents one higher. West's Opening bid and rebid, coupled with his own length in hearts, cause him to believe that the set, if he is allowed to play the hand at seven clubs, will not be too great.

7—Of course Mrs. Mills knew that seven clubs could not be made, but she felt that the chance of making a vulnerable Grand Slam was too good to be missed.

West's Opening lead was the club King, which Mrs. Mills ruffed. She then laid down the Ace of trumps, and learned the worst. At this point many players would concede defeat, but Mrs. Mills thought she could see a chance of victory, slight though it was. For this she proceeded to play.

She led the spade four, and won with the Ace in Dummy. The finesse, if needed, could be deferred. Next a trump was led from Dummy and East's eight was won with the ten. The spade 5 was now led, and when West's Queen dropped under the King, Mrs. Mills could see victory in sight, providing East, as appeared from the bidding, had three clubs. A club was led from Dummy and ruffed. The process of trump shortening was under way. The spade 9 from the closed hand won the next trick and then a diamond was led and won in Dummy. The last club was now trumped, and the success of the coup assured. Mrs. Mills at this point held the King-Knave of trumps and East the Queen-nine. East was also marked with one diamond and the remaining spade. A diamond was led and won in Dummy, and the spade Knave permitted the discard of the losing diamond in the closed hand. The last two tricks were then won with the King and Knave of hearts in Declarer's own hand.

Perhaps the contract was over-ambitious, but its fulfillment was assured by the perfect plan of play adopted, involving not only trump shortening but perfect timing.

A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Moonlight Riders Are Welcomed by Madge

It was upon the tip of my tongue to tell my father that it would be a physical and mental impossibility for me to go to sleep until Junior and Roderick returned from the moonlight drive to the beach; but in the face of his offer to sit up and read until the children arrived, I resorted to evasion.

"How thoughtful of you, darling!" I said. "And truly, I'll try to go to sleep."

"That's my own girl!" he said tenderly, and coming over to the couch he adjusted my pillows and drew the blanket more securely around me. Then he kissed me, and straightened his body to its full height.

"If it should turn colder, I'll put another blanket over you," he said. "And I'll turn out all the lights save one, so there'll be nothing to disturb you, if you should be able to snatch a bit of a nap before they get here."

He stole away with the noiselessness of the legendary Indian, snapping off lights as he went. My eyes followed him fondly until he settled himself beside the reading lamp under which he had read my mother's letter, and had taken up a magazine. But I had the impression that if the page at which he was apparently looking was not upside down, it might as well be for all the attention he was giving it.

FATHER UNEASY

Suddenly there came to me the conviction that he, too, was distrait; that for all his reassuring words to me, he was as uneasy as I was myself.

It took all my will power to keep from calling out, "Father! What is it?" But I knew the futility of any question to him, and could only lie in quaking uncertainty as to whether his uneasiness concerned the children or myself. But that it had to do with the amazing behavior of Lee Chow, I was very sure.

Then from the road toward the ocean there came the hum of a motor, and the sound of youthful voices. In a few more seconds the car of the "trailing party" rolled into the yard, and Marion, Ronald, Carolyn, Bob, Bill and Hank piled out and started for the house, stopping short to regard the lightless windows.

"Looks as if everybody had gone to bed," Marion said. "We'd better be quiet."

"What's the chance of rustling some food?" Bob asked plaintively. "My ribs are playing checkers with my back bone. I didn't get a chance to finish the wedding supper, anyway."

"You finished a good deal more than your share of it," Carolyn told him saucily, and Hank guffawed appreciatively.

"Don't you go to laughing too much at her wise cracks," he advised with a grin as he released the boy. "It isn't good for you."

SUBCONSCIOUS ANTAGONISM

"Aw, quit it!" Hank said, and there was such resentfulness in his tone, that I thought it was high time for an interruption. I guessed that Bob's apparent playfulness also masked resentment, and wondered if between Ronald and Bill there was also the same subconscious antagonism. I knew that the two collegians were too proud openly to evince jealousy of Mary's younger brothers from preparatory school, but that they resented the patent romantic interest of the two younger boys in Marion and Carolyn, I was also sure.

Secretly I welcomed the opportunity to interrupt the persiflage. It gave me something to do, permitted me to distract my mind for a few minutes from the unreasoning fear which I knew could only be appeased by the safe return of Junior and Roderick.

"Don't worry about waking anybody up," I called. "Nobody's asleep except Mother Graham and Baby Faith and—"

"One's deaf, and the other's at the other end of the house, besides, being a model baby," Marion finished gaily for me. "But why all the darkened rooms? Are all the older people playing postoffice, by any chance?"

Household Hints

To bleach almonds quickly, put them into cold water and bring to the boil; this is much quicker than the old method of covering them with boiling water.

To remove milk stains from the doorstep, make a paste of fuller's earth and water and apply to the stain. Let it remain on for about 24 hours, then wash off, and the stain will disappear.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Neglect Is the Hazard of Maternity

From time to time I have referred to a report by the New York Academy of Medicine relating to the present high death rate in maternity. This survey has aroused a great deal of discussion in newspapers and medical journals.

Dr. Copeland

The study covered a period of three years and included a careful survey of the facts surrounding two thousand and forty-one maternal deaths that occured in New York City. "Of this number," according to the report, "one thousand three hundred and forty-three, or sixty-five and eight-tenths per cent would have been preventable, if the care of the woman had been proper in all respects."

Though child-birth is no longer the dreaded ordeal of former years, too little attention is placed upon the need of thorough prenatal care. I am confident that many of the tragedies of child-birth can be traced to neglect before the baby is born. In many instances, no doubt, the expectant mother was ignorant of the necessity for care during this period. In consequence she was not given the proper advice and instructions for this important part of her experience.

What is meant by "prenatal care?"

By this is meant care of the mother during the months that she is pregnant. Too often no physical examination is made. The young woman is allowed to proceed with her pregnancy, not knowing the many dangers that may confront her.

The weight of the mother should be carefully watched during the prenatal period. No woman should gain more than twenty-five pound during the nine months of pregnancy. An excessive increase in weight may be nature's warning of some complication.

As I have repeatedly stated, the urine should be examined at monthly intervals and oftener just before delivery. I cannot overemphasize the value of periodic urinanalysis. It often is the only means of recognizing certain complications which, if detected at an early stage, can be successfully handled by proper medication and treatment.

During the prenatal period, the expectant mother should become familiar with the hygiene of pregnancy. Her diet should be simple, nutritious and well balanced. Overeating should be avoided. When nausea and vomiting are present, food should be taken at more frequent intervals but in small amounts.

It is wise to avoid overexertion, lack of sleep and long automobile or train rides. The clothing should be loose and warm. A maternity corset may be worn. Well-fitting shoes with low heels and broad toes will promote comfort. The attending physician should be seen at least once a month in the first half of the prenatal period and twice a month in the second half.

I have endeavored to point out a few of the high lights of what is included in prenatal care. At a later date, I shall write about "post partum" care, care after the baby arrives.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

MOTHERS...watch CHILD'S COLD

COMMON head colds often "settle" in throat and chest where they may become dangerous. Don't take chances at the first sniffle rub on Children's Musterole once every hour for five hours.

Children's Musterole is just good old Musterole, only in milder form—bringing ease in five minutes, and relief in five hours as a rule.

It gets such marvelous results because it's NOT just a salve, but a "counter-irritant"—quick and helpful in drawing out pain and infection.

Used by millions for 25 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists. In three strengths: Regular Strength, Children's (mild), and Extra Strong.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Seeing Her Home

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—My girl friend and I are going to a dance at a local hotel. It is a private dance, and dress is optional. We are not wearing formal dresses, but we would like to know if it would be correct to wear long gloves?

2—If a gentleman asks A for permission to take her home after a dance, and B is going home alone, would it be correct for A to ask the gentleman if B might go with them? A and B went to the dance together.

3—If a gentleman sees a girl home in a taxicab after a dance, does he get out of the cab and see her to the door, or does he say "goodnight" in the car?

4—If a gentleman asks a girl her name, is it correct for her to say, "Miss Brown" or "Miss Constance Brown" or "Constance Brown?" ANXIOUS.

1—Since you aren't wearing formal evening dress, it wouldn't be appropriate for you to wear long formal evening gloves.

2—Yes, not only is this correct for A to do but, since they went to the dance together, it is the courteous thing for her to do. It would be selfisch for A to let B go home alone.

3—The man gets out of the taxicab, helps the girl out, and goes with her to the door of her home and waits until she is safely inside before he leaves.

4—She would say "Constance Brown."

Dresden-looking Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., of Sewickley Heights, who accomplishes an amazing amount of philanthropic work, started the custom 20 years ago of presenting potted plants to Woods Run mothers.

Four hundred and fifty potted plants will be given to the mothers at the annual Easter festival this year, to be held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Woods Run Settlement, Petosky street, North Side.

Ever since Mrs. William Thaw, the original donor of Easter plants, started the custom, it has been kept up—for 20 years.

This craze for ric-rac trimming, once old-fashioned, now decidedly new fashioned, is even being imitated in other materials than the familiar braid.

Favorite diversion of the younger set this Easter vacation season—the movies!

One of his noted tricks is jumping over a cane. Before leaping, he puts his head to one side to see if the cane is just the right height from the floor. If it's too high, he'll pull it down with his front paws. Not until the height suits him will he perform.

He's a friendly dog until you ask him if he wants a bath. Then he'll slink off misanthropically.

An especially interesting program has been outlined for the current events round table luncheon on April 25 under the direction of Miss Harriet Parks. Discussion will center around Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace's "America Must Choose" and high and low tariffs as they affect Pittsburgh industries, wheat in the west and cotton in the south.

Open house and bridge will follow the buffet supper, set for the twenty-sixth, and at the book review luncheon, Mrs. C. W. Heppenstall will review Bess Streeter Alldrich's "Miss Bishop."

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Since the broadcast of Lieut. Griffith, the mail man has been active in bringing your letters on bonus matters in to be answered.

Practically all of the queries concern the time when the veteran or his dependent may expect the bonus check.

The lieutenant points out that the staff at Harrisburg is working industriously to get the checks in the hands of those who wait for them as soon as possible.

Those engaged in the task have been confronted with an added task of locating many of the veterans. Then many applications are held so that corrections or additions can be made later.

Another delay may be expected in the case of dependents. Where the checks are to go to a relative of a deceased veteran the Department of Military Affairs are holding them up for a little while.

"The department expects to send, according to Lieut. Griffith, a questionnaire form to all of those claiming compensation as a dependent of a deceased veteran. The dependent is to answer certain questions so that he or she may be adequately identified as the proper person to receive the check.

The Lieutenant promised a return engagement at the microphone to explain the questions as soon as the blank forms are in the hands of the applicants.

* * *

My wish is that a glorious Eastertide inspire you with new hope and courage for an equally glorious future.

Mark Shields Gives Political Review

Developments in the campaigns for governorship and other interesting highlights in politics are aired over WCAE tonight at 6 o'clock, by Mark Shields, political editor of the Sun-Telegraph.

Aireaster is heard over WCAE-WJAS at 12:15 this afternoon and at 6:30 this evening.

Good News For Radio Listeners

By AIRCASTER

Good news, that, from the cigaret makers who begin a three-a-week series over WJAS at 9 p. m. Monday.

Ponselle, Grete Steuckgold and Nino Martini, the Metropolitan songsters, are their featured vocalists. Rosa will lend her voice to ballads of which "Comin' Through the Rye" is typical. And Martini will sing for the first time in English.

Kostelanetz, who is to lead the band and the choir, will revive the old-time waltzes.

* * *

They tell me that T. S. Stribling, famous author, has just tossed off a series written especially for radio, which will trace the old feuds between the steamship lines and the early railroads in Stribling's native Tennessee.

Tuesdays and Fridays at 10:30 p. m. will be the time on and after April 10.

* * *

TOP STOOGE

Top honors for stooging, I suppose, should go to Graham McNamee. The Ed Wynn foil will also be straight man for Al Trahan, on the show which succeeds the Rolfe party on WCAE tonight at 10, and which will feature the Lennie Hayton Orchestra.

* * *

There's a bit of embarrassment aboard the new Jack Benny series, which is to be launched next Friday. It seems the backers had signed Robert Simmons, tenor, for the warbling work, but changed their collective minds and now have booked Frank Parker.

* * *

That's a hot yarn from Vienna, where, according to a chronicle in the Illinois Law Review, a league of property owners has sent a protest to those radio guys who direct physical exercises in early morning.

So many apartment dwellers leap up and down to the broadcast counting that at 7 a. m. the buildings actually give signs of quaking. Rhythmic jumping will cause them all to collapse if something isn't done, say the league members.

URGE SALES TAX BEFORE SINGLE TAX GROUP

The histoory of income tax legislation clearly evidences the impossibility of using the taxation powers of the government to reward one group and punish another group, Raymond D. Evans, former Assistant United States District Attorney and assistant to the potentate of Syria Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., told members of the Henry George Club at a luncheon meeting in the Chamber of Commerce yesterday. He said:

High taxes do not seriously affect the holder of existing wealth, but rather penalizes the initiative and aggressivesness of the general public, who by exercise of initiative and aggressiveness are attempting to create wealth."

The Federal government must tap new sources of revenue to cover the cost of the New Deal, Attorney Evans continued. He said:

"The most satisfactory, tried and proven source of adequate taxation is a general manufacturers' sales tax. Properly administered to avaid pyramiding of tax, the sales tax can be collected at a minimum of cost and with the least obstruction to industry and discouragement to initiative and enterprise."

JUNIOR PATROL

We read the other day that a doctor says that parents should neglect their children more than they do, fellows!

That seems a queer thing to say, doesn't it? Mostly we hear people advise parents to take better care of their children. This doctor says that some people guard their children so well from germs that they don't get measles, mumps, chicken pox, and other "children's diseases" when they are small. Then they grow up and get these diseases later, when they are harder to cure and more trouble—maybe when the boy or girl is in high school.

We don't know what to think, fellows. Maybe the doctor is right. Maybe it's better for children to take care of themselves more. How do you feel about it, fellows?

Now here's a letter from Capt. William Joyce, of 1254 Tennessee avenue, Dormont. He writes:

"I am writing to you as captain of our patrol and we are getting along very nicely and we help others in many ways, and we have meetings every Wednesday and Saturday and we listen to the Junior Patrol Broadcast. I would like to know when my club could speak over the radio broadcast and where the Junior Patrol clubs speak over the radio. I will write to you again soon."

We're always glad to hear from you, Bill. Miss White, who is in charge of the radio programs, is going to see you about speaking over the radio.

Another letter today is from some boys and girls who live on Ridgewood avenue, Pittsburgh, including Olive Mae Wall, Lois Jane Haffner, Angline Collura, Eugene Lohrey, Linnea B. Lohrey, Jimmy Collura and Betty Jane Jones. You only need to send three more pledges to have enough members for a patrol.

The last couple of days have been beautiful ones. It begins to look as though we might have a beautiful sunny Easter after all. And tomorrow is the day. We hope every one of our Junior Patrol members has a wonderful Easter.

THE EASTER BRIDES ARE PACKING THEIR TROUSSEAUX!

By PRUNELLA WOOD

EASTER IS AS MUCH a season of brides as the merry month of June, and the fact that it comes on April first this year is a mere nothing to girls headed altarwards. Part of the fun in trousseau shopping is at the lingerie counters where, merchants have a bewildering array of pretties to lure a girl. The vogue is for sets, as it has been of latter years, and this fashion goes for the whole trousseau as well as the bridal ensemble, such as the two sketched below.

* * *

UNLIKE DRESSES, hats, and other items in a trousseau, underwear can be bought in large quantities when a good buy is found, for it will not go out of style as fast as outer clothes, and it will not dry rot or wash rot if it really is a good buy. One knockout set in really handsome material, handsomely trimmed, will repay its temerous purchaser with literally years of service if it is given reasonable care during laundering.

* * *

ALL-WHITE IS frequently the bride's choice for her wedding day lingerie. Many a bridal gown demands it, in fact, for colored satin or crepe, trimmed with dark lace, may show through its white sheathe. But darker laces are very smart on good lingerie, and the blush shades are very tempting and pretty in garment fabrics. These color combinations are in good style just now, and to be found in everything from a step-in to a lisseuse, ready for the bride's check book.

Hand-run Alencon lace in a deep beige shade makes the lovely bodice of this white satin robe. Lace edges and skirt edges are finished with hand buttonholing.

The slip and panties above match the all-white gown. Note the brassiere type of the slip, and the touches of hand embroidery on the whole set.

Work Hammers Make More Noise Than Agitators

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

National financing is much like breathing.

And there would be enough breath to go around if it weren't for the extra sneezing and whistling.

Uncle Sam has a pretty good chest expansion. Rich now he is wearing a backless vest so it will meet in front.

Increased production seems to have gotten us by the economy quarantine. We are like the timid carpenter who was scared of the haunted house until he got a job building an annex on it.

Then he forgot his fears and went to work. Come to think of it, there is no agitator who can talk louder than a man banging a boiler.

REDS SEEK TO CONTROL U.S. LABOR

Plan Federation Independent of A. F. of L.

By RALPH M. EASLEY
Chairman Executive Council, the National Civic Federation.
As Told to EARL REEVES

The Communist Party of America now considers itself strong enough entrenched in industry to attempt the formation of an INDEPENDENT FEDERATION OF LABOR.

Plans for this will be presented at the party convention, April 3, in Cleveland.

Preliminary organization ACTUALLY HAS STARTED through votes favoring "amalgamation" in various independent local unions already led by Communists. As an example, out of 23 shoe workers unions, nine have voted recently to withdraw from the A. F. of L. and join a new amalgamated union.

It is estimated that there are at least a million members in independent trade unions in the United States. The Communist Party states that membership in "revolutionary unions"—in unions of the trade union unity league—is 200,000.

REDS URGE MERGER OF INDEPENDENT UNIONS

The Cleveland resolution reads:

"The party must strive to unify the independent unions (not affiliated with the A. F. of L.) with revolutionary trade unions in each industry into an independent Federation of Labor. The building of the independent trade union federation must take place on the basis of a struggle for unity from below by our work IN the independent trade unions."

The Communist Party refers over the "growing ... movement, embracing last year OVER A MILLION WORKERS IN ALMOST ALL INDUSTRIES, and for the first time in more than a decade mass strikes of the workers in the large scale and trustified auto and steel industries."

WEIRTON STEEL STRIKE LINKED TO COMMUNISTS

Communism's industrial warfare has been of three types:

1. Strikes by the "revolutionary unions." The February marine workers strike, centering in Boston and spreading southward, was hailed by the Daily Worker as "the greatest seamen's strike in twenty years."

2. Strikes instigated from WITHIN independent unions by Communists and other types of "MYSTERY STRIKES," breaking suddenly, often without any preliminary presentation of demands. The Weirton Steel strike, in which Communists participated, was an example; and the strike became a major issue because Communist success there would mean a greater opportunity of victory within U. S. Steel and Bethlehem Steel plants.

3. Obstructionist tactics WITHIN the A. F. of L. unions, including attempts to bring about unauthorized strikes, to block settlements, to discredit and oust where possible A. F. of L. leaders.

A. F. OF L. MEN ACCUSED AS 'STRIKE-BREAKERS'

In the Communist press, A. F. of L. leaders who obtain their demands and send their men back to work are attacked as "STRIKE BREAKERS."

This work of boring within the A. F. of L. is carefully organized. The Daily Worker of February 3 carried a call for a meeting of Communist Party members within the A. F. of L. in New York.

Weirton Trouble Charged to Communists

An independent Federation of Labor would combine the independent and the revolutionary unions; activity is to be intensified, by a program of "winning the masses and developing systematic work" within the A. F. of L. and the railroad brotherhoods. It is ordered, in the resolution to be presented in Cleveland, that:—

"The whole party must be mobilized to work IN the A. F. of L. and a decisive turn made toward winning the millions of workers organized in the A. F. of L., union and railroad brotherhoods and isolating the bureaucrats." (That is, elected A. F. of L. officials).

REVEALS LENIN THEORY IN PLANT WARFARE

Earl Browder, general secretary of the Communist Party, has demonstrated the Lenin theory of industrial warfare with these words:—

"The revolutionary strike, the tenacious strike which springs from one place to another; the repeated strike, the demonstration strike, which hoists the red flag in the streets, which carries revolutionary speeches and revolutionary slogans into the crowd, into the mass of the people."

Editorially, the Daily Worker points out that shipping is an arm of national defense. This strike, and the drive by Communists to penetrate the International Longshoremen's Association, are directly in line with the Red International Order of January 13, to "CONCENTRATE FORCES ON THE VITAL PARTS OF THE WAR MACHINE."

Likewise, the announced Communist program of CONCENTRATION ON VITAL POINTS IN OUR INDUSTRIAL SET-UP is reflected in the Daily Worker call (February 24) to all Communists to make a mass drive on the railway wage issue. The Daily Worker says:

"Our party must now realize that it is up to us to plunge into this struggle.

"In the forefront of all these struggles, AS THE BEST ORGANIZERS must be the Communists IN the railroad industry. The Communist Party districts, sections and units who are situated in railroad centers or near railroad terminals, round-houses, railroad lodge meeting places, freight yards or wherever railroad workers congregate, must make it their specific task to concentrate on these places. They must talk with railroad workers. Leaflets must be prepared and distributed."

LEADER IN CRUSADE TO TURN RAILS RED

The Daily Worker promises to become a leader in this crusade to capitalize "the mood for struggle on the part of the railway workers," promising many special articles of guidance and suggestion.

A significant note about a third major battle of the Communists. In the Weirton Steel strike there has existed an amazing paradox. Communism has lined up alongside the National Recovery Act. In its press and from the platform, Communism has attacked the NRA bitterly and constantly as "fascism."

But in Weirton it has been unable to organize a "revolutionary union" of its own, it believes it could not be effective in "boring within" a "company union," therefore, it supports the NRA, hoping that the A. F. of L. union will be recognized, and that Communism can work within it.

All forms of American Communist activity in industry which have been dealt with here ARE SPECIFICALLY ORDERED BY THE JANUARY 13 THESIS OF THE RED INTERNATIONAL OF MOSCOW.

Through use of the tactics laid down by Moscow, a "handful of Reds," a small Communist Party, has helped bring about strikes involving AT LEAST A MILLION WORKERS during the last year.

of unions having a total membership of more than a million.

(This is the sixth of a series of articles on the startling progress of industrial Communism in the United States. The seventh will appear in an early issue of this newspaper, probably tomorrow.)

Relations Are Like That

The best vaudeville program seen in dozens of seasons was the one headed by George Jessel Sunday night at the Casino de Paree. He attracted a class clientele, among others, and with Jimmy Savo, rocked the house. Jessel complained about a relative who came to help him run the show, but failed to remember a cue.

"He's my mother's brother, and I gotta give him every week, anyway," whispered Jessel.

The star added that in the wings he had asked his kin:

"How do you feel?"

"How should I feel?" was the retort, "you got a new tie and we ain't got no radio."

He's a Jolly Good Fellows

The Ringling Brothers and Barnum-Bailey Circus at Madison Square Garden proves definitely that spring has sprung. And annually with its arrival this pillar reprints its favorite circus story. It deals with Dexter Fellows, the grandest of the press agents.

Many years ago a lion escaped from a circus in a far western town. A posse was hurriedly collected to track it down. Dexter was among them. They paused at a saloon before the search. All had a drink, except Dexter.

"C'mon!" he was coaxed, "have a drink!"

Legends

Among other fantastic tales, not authenticated, but interesting, comes this from the cinema sector. They say that the horse owned by a noted screen lover was given to him, free-of-charge, by a syndicate of fast-thinkers. They are supposed to be allowing the horse to win races until he becomes a favorite—and there's plenty on his nose. This will be the signal, the story goes, for a grand cleanup by the mob.

The movie star supposedly isn't hep. At any rate, it's a grand pipe dream—for the horse just came in fifth!

Another Fairy Story

The above legend is like the one—that Rudy Valentino died as the aftermath of a "Mickey Finn" (a vicious drink given to nuisances and others)—administered to him in Hollywood by a group of waiters "who couldn't stand his overbearing treatment of them."

Sten's Debut As 'Nana' In Penn

By MICHAEL SHAW

Anna Sten's "Nana" opened yesterday in the Penn, and it may be said at once that on the strength of her long-delayed American debut, the peasant girl from the Ukraine, on whom Samuel Goldwyn gambled something like a million dollars, is a winner.

The story of Anna is well-known. She began in Russian films, but soon went to UFA in Germany, where she did "The Brothers Karamazov" and co-starred with Emil Jannings in "The Tempest." Both of these films were shown in Pittsburgh several years ago at the now abandoned Avenue Cinema.

When Mr. Goldwyn saw Miss Sten in Europe, he signed her and brought her to this country with the idea of providing a little competition for Garbo and Dietrich. For a year and a half he paid her a large salary while she did nothing but learn English. When she finally went to work, the first takes of "Nana" proved unsatisfactory. Mr. Goldwyn scrapped them and started over again with a new director and a new cast.

Finally came a huge promotion campaign to make America Sten-conscious. Now we view the results; and the verdict is that Miss Sten was distinctly worth all Mr. Goldwyn's trouble and expense.

The new Russian star is a luscious blonde, plumper and more vigorous than the exotic glamour girls previously imported by Hollywood, and undeniably a beauty, with a pleasantly earthy tang about her. Her acting is adequate, her accent no more marked than that of Dietrich—to whom she bears, all in all, an uncanny resemblance.

Her vehicle is perfect for its purpose, which is to show Sten in a wide variety of poses, under the most favorable circumstances. We see her briefly as a slatternly girl, then as a woman of the Paris streets, then as a stage success, a siren who drives men mad.

We see her magnificent in the costumes of the Third Empire. We see her cold and calculating, driving ahead to wealth and ease; tender and passionate in her affair with an aristocratic young soldier; heart-broken when his elder brother breaks up the affair and takes her for himself.

Toward the last she has a drunken scene, most effectively done; and at the very end, there is her suicide—the only way out when the brothers meet in her rooms.

The whole thing bears little relation to Zola's "Nana," except that the novel's atmosphere of the Parisian gutters has been excellently suggested. The picture is heartily vulgar all the way. And it serves well to introduce a star who takes her place at once among our leading screen sirens.

On the stage, the Penn has a tabloid, "Greenwich Village Follies," starring Yorke and King, and featuring Coley Worth and Edith Drake, Ayres and Rene, with Rasche, Ernest Charles, True Yorke, an unusually large chorus and a male octette.

Davis, Regent Show Fun

By MARY SHINE

The Davis and Regent theaters combine two laughs in one this week with Zasu Pitts and Slim Summerville in "Love Birds" and Fay Wray and Paul Lukas in "The Countess of Monte Cristo."

Zasu (flutter fingers) Pitts and Summerville are funny apart, and together they're a wow in "Love Birds" they stage just about the best drinking scene ever.

Zasu, as a village schoolma'am, and Slim, as a poultry farmer who is just crazy about chickens, tangle up when each buys the same tumble-down ranch from a pair of real estate swindlers. Slim loses his gold inlay, which is mistaken for a gold nugget by a prospector who starts a gold rush, and the worthless ranch is stampeded by gold seekers. The swindlers read of it, buy back the ranch from Zasu and Slim, and everybody's happy—for a while.

A tale of make-believe is the second feature, in which Paul Lukas takes the honors.

Fay, as a movie extra, is cast in a small part as The Countess of Monte Cristo. Her boy friend has just broken their engagement, and, acting on impulse, she leaves the set in a car she is driving in her role of countess.

To protect Fay from unpleasant publicity, Paul surrenders. Fay is apprehended, anyway, but the boy friend steps in at the right moment, and gets her profitable front page publicity. They clinch, and Fay forgets all about the gallant crook in the toils of the law.

Oldsters Star In Pitt

By ZORA D. UNKOVICH

Want to have some fun? The Pitt's the place for it this week with the old-timers and the youngsters acting up in Joe Laurie, Jr.'s, "Memory Lane Revue."

The Maxwell Trio, German Lizzie Wilson, Gus Hill, with his magic Indian clubs show you that 60, 70, 80 years, is mere childhood. Eddie Horan forgets he's 80 to revive his gay 'eighties in dance form, Irish Annie Hart proves there was reason aplenty for the popularity of her rendition of "The Hat Me Dear Old Father Wore" in the old Academy almost half a century back.

Dave Genaro gallantly offers his origination, the cake walk, swinging on his arm Emma Francis, whose dancing is as likeable as her smile.

You've heard it in a thousand ways, but William C. Handy plays "St. Louis Blues" as he composed it. Another Negro composer whose melodies have swayed endless dancing feet appears in the revue in the person of J. Rosamond Johnson singing his "If You Lika Me" and "Lazy Moon." That old aristocrat, Harry Brooks, greets you melodiously, too, with his well-trained banjo, while Bill Swan glides through "Swanee River."

"I Believed in You," on the screen, is a story of Greenwich Village shallowness with John Boles, Rosemary Ames and Victor Jory chiefly involved.

Warner Star Hal Le Roy

By MARGARET RUSSELL

Harold Teen and Lillums, Lilacs and Pop and Mr. and Mrs. Lovewell. Lillums' ma and pa, come to life this week in a delightful musical comedy at the Warner. Hal Le Roy, the long lean drink of water with the nimble feet, has the title role in "Harold Teen." Rochelle Hudson is well cast as Lillums and Hobart Cavanaugh as "Pop."

The picture is as spry and clean and joyous as a breath of spring; very appropriate for Easter week. The entire Warner program has youth appeal galore, from the feature, through a Harry Langdon comedy, "Circus Hoodoo," a Block and Sully silly, "The Wrong, Wrong Trail," to a Betty Boop caricature of "Alice in Wonderland," called "Blunderland."

The scenes of "Harold Teen" are laid in Covina, a typical small town with a rah-rah high school spirit. There is no plot, but youth never needs a plot to be exciting. A helter skelter series of incidents need only to accumulate to make life interesting under such circumstances as surround the every day existence of the tragi-comic world of the characters.

A visiting banker and his bored daughter bring new stimuli to Covina in the form of a musical revue of local talent. In it, Hal Le Roy gets a chance to employ those fast-stepping legs of his to good advantage, incidentally saving the show and winning his girl.

HOT FROM HOLLYWOOD

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, March 31.—Hello! Joel McCrea and Frances Dee, victims of recent burglarizing, had visions the other night of newspaper headlines to the effect that they had captured a real, live BURGLAR—but no ... 'twas not to be. To prevent further snatching in their home, Joel and Frances installed that new invention (by Frank McNaughton, former newspaperman), called "the radio-eye," which, while invisible to the human eye, will ring an alarm when anyone crosses its path.

The other night when it began to ring violently, Joel jumped into his clothes and planned to catch a burglar, but no one was in sight. Back to bed he went. Again the alarm sounded. Joel called the police. A thorough investigation revealed that their pet pooch had stood up in an effort to open the door and had come into the light rays and thereby caused the alarm to ring.

From now on the pup sleeps inside!

Zeppo Marx's sudden gesture of becoming an agent with the firm of Milton Bren and Frank Orsatti may also serve as the end of the famous Four Marx Brothers on the screen. He hasn't as yet made any definite decision, but if Groucho, Harpo and Chico insist upon his appearance with them, he will probably consent. Zeppo, of course, does little in their comedies, but his absence will spoil their trade mark, as it were.

Mr. Roosevelt On Screen

President Roosevelt is pictured in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News as he departs on his long-delayed winter vacation. He is hailed by great crowds as he arrives in Jacksonville, Fla., where he is met by his host, Vincent Astor, and they repair to the latter's yacht, Nourmahal. The Globe Trotter tells all about it.

At Glendale, Cal., the President's son, Elliott Roosevelt, aviation editor of the Hearst newspapers, talks on the air mail situation. Without criticizing his father's action in canceling commercial contracts, he states that the failure of the Army to adequately carry the air mail should be a lesson.

NOTE—Owing to the necessity upon theater managers to arrange their programs in time schedule, it is possible some of the subjects of the above issue of Hearst Metrotone News may not be shown in your theater.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

PASADENA, Cal., March 31.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Here is something I think will bear repeating. Two kid brothers, one 14, the other 12, hiking in the mountains out here. The young kid bit by a rattlesnake, the 14-year-old one cut the wound all up with a knife, and they took turns sucking the poisoned blood out. The younger one finally fainted, the other carried him up the mountain two miles on his back, and he has saved him. We are not so bad off. These kids are Daniel Boones and Davey Crocketts in any age.

Will Rogers.

Yours, WILL.

Comedy Film Is Stanley Feature

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Barring its length, which keeps it before the eyes for an hour and 45 minutes, and an evident striving for effect on the part of Frank Capra, who has achieved something of a reputation as an ace director, "It Happened One Night," film in the Stanley, is a good picture of the light comedy type. Based on a Cosmopolitan Magazine story by Samuel Hopkins Adams, it co-stars Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert, who are in sight most of the time. That, to many theater patrons, will be considered no loss of golden moments, especially as both give excellent portrayals, but to this reviewer the denouement seemed too long delayed.

This is a comedy of amusing situations revolving around the fact that a rich man's daughter, who has made a runawey marriage, leaps from her father's yacht in Florida waters, determined to join her husband, who, in reality, is a fortune hunter, and whom papa is equally determined to lose as a son-in-law, via the annullment route. The gal, who would be Miss Colbert, is a passenger on the same bus that carries Mr. Gable, fired newspaper reporter, and he befriends her when she gets into a jam, his reward to be an exclusive story about the girl for whom detectives all along the route are looking.

Their adventures, and they are numerous and humorous, make up the action of the picture, which is enlivened by good dialogue, and concludes with a cute finale that must have caused Mr. Capra to strain considerably. By that time the first marriage has been annulled, and there is a new bridegroom. Only two guesses as to whom that would be.

Mr. Gable's characterization puts him in the he-man class as he makes himself commander of the two-party expedition, and Miss Colbert makes credible her portrait of a spoiled child who is all right at heart.

Walter Connolly—well, Walter couldn't help but be good—so you know the father role is in good hands, with him handling it.

Masquers Try Mystery Next

By GEORGE SEIBEL

If all amateur dramatic groups acquitted themselves as nobly as Carl Cass's Pitt Players in "The Torch - Bearers," theatergoers would not miss the road so much. Another of our well-balanced organizations, the Calvary Masquers announces a mystery thriller, "In Times Square," for April 10-11-12, in their playhouse at 315 Shady avenue. This drama, by Dodson Mitchell and Clyde North, has never been seen here—and is off the beaten track because it has no dumb detective, no Chinese valet and no East Indian housekeeper. George M. Rowland, Jr., will direct the production.

Mr. Seibel

An ambitious flight will be taken by the Monongahela Valley Community Players next Thursday and Friday, when Noel Coward's "Hay Fever" is being put on in the Carnegie Auditorium at Braddock. The players are Florence Ring, Alice Morrison, Madeline Barnhart, Martha Slick, Mary Margaret Singer, W. W. Ring, James Wallace, H. Bruce McClure and Dan O'Shea. Morton Frank is directing.

"It Happened in Hollywood" will be presented Thursday and Friday evenings in the East Liberty Y. M. C. A. by Oscar Norbeck's Triangle Players.

Two plays are in preparation at the Experimental Theater in Aiken avenue—"The Fifth Personality," by Kilburn Blaisdell, which will be directed by Helen C. McFarland, and "Eleanora's Portrait,' by Sarah C. Pettit, which Freeman Hammond will direct. This double bill is to be given three nights in succession—April 10-12.

During the following week the Nixon Theater is to house two groups—as the Epworthian Players are to produce "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," by Jerome K. Jerome, on April 17, and the Cap and Gown Club of Pitt University will put on its twenty-seventh annual production, with William Marlatt as director. The opening performance is being sponsored by the Civic Club of Allegheny County.

Pirate Pruning Due Soon
Club's Indicated Make-Up
Many Nations in League

Another Moore Returns
Football Pros On Block
Ten Titles Sonja's Goal

Scheduled to start East next Monday night, the Pirates have reached the stage at which George Gibson must begin to figure on the make-up of his club for the regular season. So far, the manager has given no intimation of his plans, but the conclusion that might be drawn from camp reports up to date is that the only questions are whether Recruit Blanton can crowd Chagnon or Harris off the list of nine pitchers to be carried, and whether the third catcher will be Finney or Padden. The farming out of Trapp, Etten, Brubaker, and Johnson seems certain.

George Gibson

If a guess may be ventured from this distance, here's the way the Pittsburgh club may be constructed when Manager Gibson has completed his pruning:

Catchers—Grace, Veltman and Finney.

That array, as compared with last year's crew, would show Veltman substituted for Picinich and Padden behind the bat; Lucas replacing Swetonic in the pitching department; Lavagetto instead of Piet on the infield roll, and Roettger instead of Comorosky as extra outfielder.

MANY NATIONALITIES IN SENIOR LEAGUE

Baseball may be America's national game, but it includes among its major league players the sons of parents of many other nationalities and races. In the National League alone you can find in the catching ranks Gus Mancuso and Ernesto Lombardi, Italian; Al Lopez, Spanish; Gabby Hartnett, Irish; Ralston Hemsley, Welsh; Moe Berg, Jewish, and Mike Gonzales, Cuban. Among the pitchers there are Bill Hallahan, Irish; Steve Swetonic, Slavish; Van Mungo, Dutch; Sylvester Johnson, Swedish; Heinie Meine, German; Bud Tinning, Danish; Dolf Luque, Cuban; Reg Grabowski, Polish; Elon Hogsett, Indian; Leon Chagnon, French; Isadore Goldstein, Jewish, and Emil Leonard, Belgian.

At first base there are Gus Suhr, German, and Don Hurst, Danish, and Harry Greenberg, Jewish. At second base, Tony Cuccinello, Italian, and Tony Piet, Polish. At shortstop, Leo Durocher, French; Blondy Ryan, Irish; Mark Koenig, Swiss, and Bill Urbanski, Polish. At third base, Johnny Vergez, Portuguese. In the outfield, Chuck Klein and Heinie Manush, German; Adam Comorosky, Polish; Joe Medwick, Hungarian; John Moore, Welsh; Forrest Jensen, Danish; Phil Weintraub, Jewish, and Henry Oana, Hawaiian. And for manager, you could throw in George Gibson, Canadian.

EDDIE MOORE AGAIN BOBS UP IN MAJORS

While it can't hope to rival the National League's total of five players named Moore, the American League isn't going to let the senior loop have a complete corner on that family. Old Wilcy Moore, the former Yankee and Red Sox pitcher, has been shipped back to the minors, but now he is to be replaced in the Harridge circuit by none other than Eddie, veteran infielder of Pirate memory. In a desperate attempt to get a second baseman, the Cleveland club borrowed Eddie from the New Orleans Pelicans, and he has shown up so well in exhibition games that there's a good chance he will be brought North by the Indians.

Eddie Moore

The elevator man has nothing on this particular member of the Moore family for ups and downs. Cleveland is the fifth major league club with which Eddie has been connected, though all of his previous engagements were in the National. Pittsburgh had him from the fall of 1923 until June of 1926, when he was turned over to the Braves on waivers. Boston sent him to Toledo, and the Dodgers brought him back, only to ship him out to Oakland in the Lombardi deal. The Giants drafted him from Oakland, and in the fall of 1932 gave him to Dallas in part payment for Byrne James. New Orleans got Eddie from Dallas and now he comes up to the majors at the age of 32 for another trial. How long he will last can only be conjectured, but Eddie himself shows his characteristic confidence. When Billy Evans asked him how he would like to play for the Indians a while, Moore responded: "What do you mean—a while? If you put a Cleveland uniform on me you'll have to cut it off."

DETROIT PROS TO USE HOME STATE MEN

In their search for new material for next season, the owners of the Pittsburgh football Pirates may be invited to look over some of the members of the former Portsmouth National League club, which has been transferred to Detroit. Though retaining George (Potsy) Clark, one-time Illinois halfback, as coach, the Detroit magnates will put some of the 27 players on the market, as they plan a lineup that will be strongly representative of their home state, featuring former gridders of University of Michigan, University of Detroit and Michigan State College.

Among those in prospect for places on the payroll are Norbett Reisterer, end; Healey Sharkey, center, and Joe Beer, tackle, of Detroit. Others are Bob Monnett and Abe Ellowitz, former Michigan State halfbacks, who played professionally last fall. Not all of the old Portsmouth players will be sold, however. Three of those to be retained are Glenn Presnell, George Christianson and George Emerson. Dutch Clark, who was out of the game last season, also is expected to return.

ICE QUEEN TURNS TO AMERICAN SKATES

Far from retiring from figure-skating competition, as has been rumored, Miss Sonja Henie, of Norway, who has won the women's world championship eight times in succession, plans to remain in the game until she has stretched her string of titles to 10, and she is going to depend on American skates to bring her success. When she goes back to Norway, Miss Henie will take with her for future competition a pair of United States blades, the product of a Minneapolis manufacturer.

Sonja Henie

The skates are lower than the ones she has been using, and she expects to practice for a year before giving any exhibitions on them, perhaps remaining out of the world meet next year to resume competition in 1936, but the Norwegian girl says she is sure they will help her to skate faster and better, though she is already considered the last word in grace and technique. Comment ing on the younger American figure skaters, the ice queen rated 14-year-old Robin Lee as the best and praised Miss Audrey Peppe, 16, as a skater of great potentialities.

SCHOOL RIVALS STAGE FINAL TONIGHT

Probable Lineup:

South		Reading
Galiszewski	F	Drachna
Milkovich	F	S.Mendelsohn
Spotovich	C	Mantz
Czlapinski	G	R.Mendelsohn
Miskevics	G	Guldin

By JULIUS LEVIN

A new state scholastic basketball champion will be crowned in the Pitt Stadium pavilion tonight when South High School, City League champion and Western regional finalist, opposes Reading High School, Eastern regional finalist, in the deciding battle of the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association eliminations.

South High School, District VIII champion, and Reading High School, District III titleholder, both have waded through strong opposition to reach the championship round and indications are that tonight's contest will prove a thriller from start to finish.

Undefeated in two years of play in the the City League race and boasting a record of 24 victories out of 25 games played so far this season, South High School's supporters are confident the Orioles will be the first Pittsburgh quintet to carry off the state toga.

FOUR VETERANS

The local passers are veteran tournament players, four of the five starting players, Ed Czlapinski, Ed Spotovich, Joe Galiszewski and Charley Miskevics, having played on the South quintet which went as far as the Western regional final in last year's tournament. Eddie Milkovich, who has filled the shoes of Bill Jesko at forward, is the only newcomer.

The only defeat on the South record is a 27-26 setback at the hands of New Castle in a non-league fray prior to the opening of the City League campaign. Besides going through their local schedule without meeting a reverse, the Orioles took both games of the post-season series with Perry in the City title playoffs and vanquished Somerset, District V champion, Huntingdon, District VI kingpin, and New Kensington, W. P. I. A. L. champion and District VII representative, in the P. I. A. A. eliminations. New Kensington one of the pre-tournament favorites to carry off the state crown, was defeated by a 39-26 margin in the Western regional final.

READING STRONG

Reading likewise has compiled an impressive record in reaching the championship game. The District III champion had to wade through a field of powerful teams to earn the right to engage the Western finalist. Drawing a bye in the first round of the state playoffs. Reading surprised the experts by defeating Palmerton, champion of District XI, 28-21. Palmerton had previously eliminated Lower Merion, champion of District I and defending P. I. A. A. titleholder, 18-16.

Coal Township, champion of District IV, loomed as a dark horse in the Eastern eliminations until it ran afoul Reading in the Eastern regional final. This team started its fight for the state crown by defeating Luzerne, champion of District II, 34-24, but saved its best attack for the second round engagement with Factoryville, District XII kingpin. All Coal Township did to this quintet was to score a 78-17 victory.

Coal Township got away to a running start in its Regional final with Reading, but was overtaken in the last quarter of the game, losing out in a thrilling duel, 41-39. Coal Township led Reading at halftime, 25-13.

EAST HOLDS EDGE

The battle tonight brings together the Eastern and Western finalists for the fourteenth successive year. The state playoffs were inaugurated in 1920, when Harrisburg Tech, which included in its lineup Carl Beck, won the crown. During the 14 years of play, the Eastern finalist has been the winner nine times. Western Pennsylvania has won the title four times and Northwestern Pennsylvania one time. The four Western Pennsylvania teams to win the crown were McKeesport in 1921, Homestead in 1924, Uniontown in 1925, when its lineup included Charley Hyatt, and Scott, of North Braddock, in 1931. Sharon High School, Northwestern Pennsylvania entry, carried off the laurels in 1930.

The Reading squad, accompanied by school officials, arrived in Pittsburgh last night. The squad held a workout in the Pitt Stadium pavilion. A special train, carrying 500 rooters and the school band of 63 pieces, will arrive here early this evening.

The officials will be announced by Edward Wicht, secretary of the P. I. A. A., shortly before game time. The first whistle will be sounded at 8 o'clock.

Reading Player Dies on Eve of Title Game

A note of sadness pervaded the Reading High School basketball team as it prepared to battle South High School for the state scholastic championship in the Pitt Stadium pavilion tonight. Coach John Deitrich and his players, quartered in Webster Hall, received word last night from Reading announcing the death of James Foreman, 17, stellar guard on the team prior to the illness that forced him to bed.

The squad paid a visit to their teammate before they departed for Pittsburgh early yesterday. Foreman according to Coach Deitrich, not only was an excellent guard, but was president of the senior class and an honor student.

REDUCE SIZE OF FOOTBALL

NEW YORK, March 31.—(AP.)—A change in the specifications of the football for 1934 decreasing the circumference and making it easier to handle and forward pass has been announced by the National Rules Committee through Secretary William S. Langford.

The short axis circumference has been reduced from the old measurement range of 22 to 22½ inches to 21¼ to 21½. No change was made in the other specifications as to weight, air pressure, general shape or the long axis circumference. Langford said:

"We discovered last fall that various schools and one important conference were ordering balls of smaller circumference than the specifications provided.

"A nation-wide canvass of coaches and athletic directors was made and we found a popular desire for a change in the ball. The new specification seemed to meet the majority's wishes.

"This is the first change since 1931, when we made slight alterations in both the long and short axis circumference and set definite limits on the pressure.

"The change undoubtedly will make the ball easier to grip and aid the forward passer. Whether that was the motive behind the agitation I don't know."

There has been little real change in the ball, Langford said, since the early days of football.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent.

LOS ANGELES, March 31.—Topkicker Gibson, of the big Pirate squad, this morning was ready to blow his whistle and read the riot act. In view of the performance of his club at Wrigley Field yesterday, Gibson's mood may be excused, in fact, it should be indorsed.

The Pirate pitching staff has had the advantage of almost an entire month of spring training, yet some of the first-string sharpshooters are pitching a brand of ball that would not get them meal money and rooms in a bush league.

SMITH ON SPOT

One of the principal victims of Gibson's anger is big Hal Smith, who already has been named as a first-string pitcher for championship duty. Smith went to the mound in the eighth inning with the Pirates nursing a one-run lead over the Cubs. All he had to do was to get six of them out and everything would have been as merry as a wedding bell.

Instead of getting six men out in a comparative hurry, big Hal brought no less than 10 Cubs to the plate in the eighth round. In the interim, five of the enemy scored, and it was a case of good-bye ball game. Gibby was fit to be tied while all this was going on. Hal's control was fearful and when he did get the ball over he had nothing on it. So the Bruins won, 13 to 6, and thus made it four triumphs in the six battles with the Pittsburghers.

Ralph Birkofer traveled seven rounds against the Bruins, to mark up a new high for the Bucco pitchers in this connection. Ralph was good and bad in spots, homers by Hartnett and Stainback marring his work. Billy Herman nicked Smith for a homer.

MALONE GOES ROUTE

Malone pitched the entire game for the Cubs. Pat had a couple of bad rounds, but on the whole his mound work was clever, especially when it is considered that the veteran pitched the full distance.

Larry French will pitch as far as he feels like going this afternoon, when the seventh game of the series is staged. The two clubs will stage a clash tomorrow.

CHILLYSAUCE

What is success in this vale of tears? Samuel Insull had a billion dollar empire, yet he lives to be a man without a country. A poor boy named Walter Maranville breaks his leg in a ball game and messages of sympathy are pied high in his flower-strewn room. What would Samuel Insull give for one of those sincere telegrams that come from all corners of the land to Maranville?

But you have to be able to it in baseball, and Rabbit certainly could take more than his share. Perhaps Pat Malone, the powerful Chicago pitcher, had this philosophy in mind yesterday when he dusted off the promising Pirate rookie, Harry Lavagetto. Malone knocked the Italian kid down two or three times after Harry had singled with the bases loaded to give the Pirates a one-run lead over the Bruins.

The boys in the Pirate dugout were peeved at Malone for throwing at the youngster. Some of the Pirates wanted to resort to retaliatory measures. They asked Ralph Birkofer to dust off Malone when he came to the plate. Birkofer, however, refused to throw at the veteran right-hander. There seems to be an unwritten rule among pitchers which decrees they shall not throw at each other.

Of late the Pittsburgh pitchers have given some painful exhibitions on the slab. They have resembled a five-and-ten-cent staff. It is up to the sharpshooters to show some consistency soon, for the opening of the big league season is little more than two weeks away.

White Sox officials should be given an award for optimism. The Sox don't look so hot in spring training, but their bosses state that these exhibition games mean nothing so far as the championship season is concerned.

Jim Bradley, of Pittsburgh, who, among several Pittsburgh occupations, sold tickets for Sam Watters at Forbes Field, is pleasantly situated in Los Angeles. Jim is a Bloomfield boy. Larry Gosharn, once a political power in Pittsburgh and a brother of the well-known Bob, veteran newspaperman, is the editor of a small-town paper near Los Angeles.

BUCCOS PICKED AS RUNNERSUP BY CORUM

By BILL CORUM
International News Service.

NEW YORK, March 31.—The first of every April I get fun out of doing this annual column of predictions. April first is a peculiarly appropriate time for it, since only a sucker makes predictions when he doesn't have to. It's not a good way to build up a reputation for sound judgment, as a rule. But I repeat that I enjoy it at the time, and along about November the clients get their innings. For many of them clip the column and keep it to hold against me.

Still, if you don't take it too seriously, after eating something sour, it can't hurt you. So here we go!

RATES BUCS SECOND

I usually have been pretty lucky picking these and I think the big league pennant races for 1934 will wind up as follows:

AMERICAN LEAGUE

1—Yankees	5—Browns
2—Red Sox	6—Indians
3—Senators	7—White Sox
4—Tigers	8—Athletics

NATIONAL LEAGUE

1—Cardinals	5—Reds
2—Pirates	6—Braves
3—Giants	7—Phillies
4—Cubs	8—Robins

I also unblushingly predict:

That a horse by the name of Sir Thomas will win the Kentucky Derby.

That Max Baer will knock out Primo Carnera to become the heavyweight champion of the world.

That, if they meet, Jimmy McLarnin will knock out Barney Ross.

That before the year is over Maxie Rosenbloom finally will be dethroned as light-heavyweight champion.

PILOTS TO GO

That two managers now leading major league teams will not finish the year at the helm.

That boxing will experience a revival all over the country.

That the proposed relief to horse racing in New York state will not prove any such boon as many seem to think, because there are neither old-time bookmakers left, nor old-time bankrolls. To have open betting there must be openhanded gamblers with plenty of what it takes to gamble. Open betting is not like mutuel betting in which the public must first put in the money before the public takes some of it back.

That Babe Ruth will not play a hundred complete games.

LIKES DEAN, HUBBELL

That, barring accidents to one or the other, the pitching heroes of the National League will again be Carl Hubbell and Dizzy Dean.

That Chuck Klein will not set the league on fire by his hitting in Chicago.

That the United States will win the Davis Cup.

That the Cards will win the World Series.

Woman Golf Star Out for Assembly

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., March 31.—(AP.)—Maureen Orcutt, New Jersey women's golf champion, former North-South champion and holder of a leg on the Miami-Biltmore trophy, has been announced by Democratic County Chairman James A. Breslin as an organization candidate for assemblyman. She will seek one of the five Democratic nominations from Bergen County at the May primary election.

Miss Orcutt, who confirmed Breslin's announcement, will be a running mate of Jack Wallace, of Rutherford, former Rutgers football coach.

Payoff time is just around some wooden bowl at Duquesne Garden, where Pittsburgh's first international six-day bike race has been going on since shortly after midnight last Sunday. Payoff time, a comparatively few hours away, and the race remains wide open.

The American team of Reggie McNamara and Tony Beckman, with 463 points, is out in front, having covered 2,044 miles and nine laps. The race's most colorful duo, Torchy Peden and Jules Audy, is all even in the matter of mileage with the American stars, but are 79 points in arrears.

THREE TEAMS TIED

Hot on the heels of the first two teams are three others, any one of which stands an excellent chance of overtaking the leaders in the final sprints tonight, the gruelling one-mile tests, which carry 75-point awards for victory. It is these sprints that will decide the winner of the grind, provided one of the teams does not wind up with a lap lead on the field when the final gun sounds at midnight.

The three teams battling along with eight laps to their credit are the world champions, Piet Van Kempen and Frank Bartell; the crack French set of Henri LePage and Zenon St. Laurent and the consistent German-Swiss combination of Freddie Zach and Otto Petri. Van Kempen and Bartell, if they can pick up the lap separating them from the top notchers, will go into the lead, for they have 20 more points than McNamara and Beckman.

Behind these five, and very much within striking distance of the top, provided they can pick up points in the sprints this afternoon and tonight, are the Italians, Tom Saetta and Fioravanti Baggio, two laps behind with 290 points.

Yesterday's riding, before the largest crowd of the week, some 7,000 fans, was fast and furious and marked by several thrilling spills. The day also brought the withdrawl of one team, Rene Boogmans, the Belgium veteran, and his partner, Joe LePorte dropping out at 8 o'clock last evening when it discovered that Boogmans had a dislocated collar bone. He was injured in a bad smashup Thursday night, but continued to ride until the pain became so intense that he found it impossible to continue.

The lead alternated between McNamara and Beckman, Audy and Peden and LePage and St. Laurent. After holding at least a share of the top position for almost 72 hours, the brilliant Frenchmen tired and relinquished the grasp they'd held with such amazing tenacity.

AMERICANS GAIN

McNamara and Beckman caught up with and then passed the Frenchmen at 11 o'clock last night and threw off the challenges of Peden and Audy, Cohen and Elder and Van Kempen and Bartell from then on.

Little Jules Audy figured in one of last evening's more serious crashes. He and Peden were engaged in a relief when Peden's bike slipped and he crashed into his little partner, both rolling to the bottom of the turn. Audy already had his left hand in splints, and when he returned to the track, his left knee was bandaged and his leg and shoulder scraped.

Early this morning, Peden figured in another spill. He was riding high and slow when his wheel slipped and he smacked into the closely-bunched field, neatly clipping out half of his pursuers. No one was injured.

MEADVILLE PIN TEAM ON TOP IN TOURNEY

By PHILIP GRABOWSKI

Unless a team comes along with enough stuff on the ball to beat the 2,695 score rolled last night by the Berchtold quintet, of Meadville, the Crawford Countians are going to walk off with first money in the five-men event in the annual Pennsylvania and Ohio duckpin tournament, in progress on the Forward alleys, East End.

The Berchtold's bettered the previous high team score, made Thursday by the Bolds, of Beltzhoover, by 29 pins.

The Binder and Beet doubles combination held onto first place in the two-men event, but Bykowski and Early, of the Emersons, rolled to within 10 pins of the leaders with a score of 1,172.

None of the pinmen in the singles were able to surpass the mark set on opening night by Vitevich, of Ambridge, who rolled a 692.

The team of Unger and Kramer set a new high double game standard with a mark of 440. The scores:

PEORIA, Ill., March 31.—Members of the two teams representative of the Pittsburgh Athletic Association who rolled in the annual American Bowling Congress tournament here last night today have a chance to redeem themselves for their mediocre showing when they swing into the doubles and singles.

The No. 1 quintet produced a 2,471 count while No. 2 showed but 2,111. But one double century was recorded in the entire proceedings this being by R. Thomas in his first game.

The Renners, of Youngstown, were unable to get started until their last game and then shot a 979 to close with a total of 2,662.

Milwaukee and Chicago entrants gave the five-men team standing a shaking up last night. The Blatz team, of Milwaukee, rolled into second place with a score of 3,014, and Schlitz team, also of Milwaukee, into third place with 2,993. The Birk Brothers, of Chicago, gained fourth place with 2,948. The scores of Pittsburgh district entrants:

Baseball Briefs

ORLANDO, Fla.—(INS.)—Camp followers of the Dodgers were talking trade today, but Casey Stengel, the club's manager, was content to concern himself with the improvement shown by Ray Benge, one of his mound hopefuls. Benge pitched five innings against the "Junior Varsity" yesterday and looked good. The rumor mongers have the Dodgers planning a trade with either the Boston Braves or the New York Giants.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(INS.)—The New York Yankees hope to break their four-game losing streak at the expense of minor league opposition today. They face their Newark farm hands here. Yesterday the Yankees lost to the Cardinals at Bradenton, 3 to 2.

NEW ORLEANS, La.—(INS.)—The World Champion New York Giants were here today to open an exhibition tour with the Cleveland Indians. In all probability Carl Hubbell, ace left-hander of the National League, will hurl for the Giants. Yesterday the Giants defeated the Nashville Vols, 4 to 3, at Dothan, Ala.

WILMERDING Y NEAR FINAL

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., March 31.—(AP.)—The team from Wilmerding, Pa., emerged as a semi-finalist in the international Y. M. C. A. basketball tournament by defeating the Negro basket shooters from the One Hundred Thirty-fifth Street Branch, New York, 37 to 32.

The Western Pennsylvanians, by downing the New Yorkers, who had emerged with a victory from Thursday night's eliminations, won a place in the semi-finals along with Buffalo, N. Y.; Williamsport and Quincy, Mass., which already had qualified.

Oak Park and Peoria, Ill., won consolation round games yesterday. Red Kopecky scored 17 points to help Oak Park down Lebanon, Pa., 51 to 47, while Peoria downed Bayonne, N. J., 56 to 35.

B. LEECH STARS

Capt. Leech and Hurney, of Wilmerding, with six and four field goals, respectively, were the winners' offensive powers. Isles, of New York, found the long-distance shooting to his liking and sank six baskets.

The flashy Negro team abandoned its smooth passing attack in favor of long-range shooting offense that failed to click. Wilmerding, led by Capt. Leech, functioned smoothly and stalled effectively through the last two minutes and 20 seconds. The Wilmerding game lineup:

AKRON TEAMS PLAY

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., March 31.—Two Akron quintets, the Ohio Celtics, who eliminated the Wellsville Goetz passers, and the Moncos, who drew a first round bye, were the favorites today at the opening of the second round of the ninth annual Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia senior basketball tournament here.

The East Liverpool Nationals, composed of Geneva College stars, who won the 1933 championship here, also are in the running, while the Pittsburgh Mt. Pisgah Presbyterians are expected to give a good account of themselves.

Florida Suspends Owner, Horses

MIAMI, Fla., March 31.—(INS.)—Owner-Trainer Harry Herendeen and 11 of his thoroughbreds have been suspended by the stewards of Tropical Park for violation of a rule of the Florida rules of racing, pending further action by the Florida State Racing Commission. This is the anti-stimulating act.

The action was taken following the report of state chemists that a saliva test taken of Levaal, winner of the third race Wednesday, showed traces of stimulants.

The list of Herendeen's horses suspended follows: Levaal, Spartan Lady, Premeditate, Dozeless, Le Ministre, Babee, No No, Teeny Weeny, Crystal Girl, Payall and Peace Lady.

Medalist Advances In Women's Play

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 31.—(INS.)—Marion Miley, of Louisville, Ky., a golfing newcomer of this season, continued to blaze a path of victory in the Augusta women's invitation tourney.

The medalist in the qualifying round, she defeated Mrs. H. Ferris, of Boston, yesterday, 6 and 5, to go into the semi-finals today, facing Mrs. Charles Harbough, of Cleveland, a veteran of this tournament.

MIAMI, Fla., March 31.—(AP.)—Florida's 79-day horse racing season closes today with an eight race card at Tropical Park, where the winter's thoroughbred running began last January.

PRO NETTERS CARD MANY TOURNEYS

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The United States Professional Tennis Association will flash a sustained series of tournament events this summer favorably comparable to the best the traditional amateur circuit can offer, according to word received here by Julius Boise, famed net instructor at the Allegheny Country Club, and leading spirit for many years in the movement to place the moneyed branch of the pastime on a soundly organized basis. A letter to Boise from the tourney committee of the U. S. P. T. A.—the group is made up of William T. Tilden II, Vincent Richards and Frank Hunter—discloses that the program to date consists of no less than 14 consecutive events, ranging in time from May 19 to August 25, and in territory from Boston to St. Louis and from Milwaukee to Memphis.

Pittsburgh is conspicuously absent from a card calling for visits to virtually every principal city of the East—a deficiency due rather to lack of local facilities for handling large racquet conclaves than to dearth of interest in the game.

MAY APPEAR HERE

An effort, incidentally will be registered to bring the "pro" performers to this district shortly after the windup of the National championships, slated for New York the week of August 18. The professional slate follows:

June 3 to 10—New England championships at Longwood Cricket Club, Boston.

June 10 to 17—Western championships at University Club, Cleveland.

July 1 to 8—Missouri Valley championships at St. Louis.

July 8 to 15—Southern championships at Memphis Country Club, Memphis.

July 29 to August 5—Mid-Western championships at Hawthorne Tennis Club, Indianapolis.

August 5 to 12—Century of Progress championships, South Shore Country Club, Chicago.

All of the foregoing affairs are described as definitely lined up with the exception of the Open classic, which remains decidedly in the problematical stage.

NO GUARANTEES ASKED

Popularity of the professional competition this year among clubs of high standing which are not prone to enter the promotional field, is no doubt attributable to the fact that United States P. T. A. authorities are not demending guarantees from the organizations sponsoring their tournaments. The system in vogue calls for allocation of 46 per cent of the gross receipts, after deduction of government tax, for the payment of cash prizes. Twenty-seven per cent goes for singles awards and 19 for doubles, in accordance with the following schedules:

SINGLES

Winner	10 per cent
Runner-up	5 per cent
3 and 4, each	3 per cent
5, 6, 7 and 8, each	1½ per cent

DOUBLES

Winner	10 per cent
Runner-up	5 per cent
3 and 4, each	2 per cent

W. P. Snyder, Jr., and G. C. Burgwin, Jr., will meet Charles Lockhart and George Lockhart in the final round of the Pittsburgh Golf Club's annual doubles championship today. Snyder and Burgwin defeated T. A. Robinson and Stanley Brown, 6-2, 6-2, 6-2, while the Lockharts defeated W. R. Scott and H. J. Burgwin, 6-0, 6-1, 6-0, in the semi-finals yesterday.

COCHRAN TAKES CUE LEAD

CHICAGO, March 31.—(AP.)—Welker Cochran, of San Francisco, hit the peak of his game last night to defeat his old rival, Willie Hoppe, of New York, 400 to 309, in 10 innings and take possession of first place in the international 18.2 balkline billiards championship tournament.

Kinrey Matsuyama, of Japan, won his second victory of the tournament, overcoming Ora Morningstar, San Diego (Cal.) veteran, 400 to 300. Matsuyama had a high run of 76, while Morningstar clicked off 105 in a row.

The victory was Cochran's third against one defeat. Hoppe suffered his second defeat in four matches and slipped from a tie for first down to fourth.

SPENCER FIVE WINS

ZONE DEFENSE FIGHT LOOMS

ATLANTA, March 31.—There is a possibility that the big guns of collegiate basketball will open a heavy bombardment on the proponents of the zone defense at the National Basketball Coaches' last session this morning.

For five years the outstanding members among the coaches have been agitating to have the burden of proof for stalling put on the defensive team, that is, the team that is behind. They received a blow several years ago, when their opponents slipped in the rule putting the line across the middle of the floor, but stalling did not cease.

KEOGAN SPEAKS

In yesterday's session, George Keogan, of Notre Dame, and Piggy Lambert, of Purdue, spoke in favor of some plan that would penalize the team that is behind when it refuses to come out of its shell and get the ball.

The big trouble is, however, that there is nothing that can be done. It is almost impossible to arrange any way of penalizing the team that is behind and decides to stick to its own part of the floor, without complicating matters beyond the ken of the average fan.

Pitt's Golden Panthers won a hard-fought, 20-minute demonstration tussle from Illinois Wesleyan last night with the coaches looking on. The score was 18 to 15.

RODERICK STARS

The Panthers stepped away to a five-point lead, but the rugged Illinois team rallied strongly and took the lead. The rally, and, in fact, the play of the Wesleyan team throughout was led by Weper, husky forward, who bagged six field goals and one foul for 13 points.

DETROIT WINS ICE TITLE

DETROIT, March 31.—(AP.)—Detroit's Red Wings, boasting their first National Hockey League championship as a result of a 1-to-0 victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs, prepared today to enter the Stanley Cup matches here next week.

If the Chicago Black Hawks beat Montreal tomorrow night in their end of the National League series it will throw the Wings and the Black Hawks together for the highest prize in professional hockey.

TECUMSEHS VICTORS

LONDON, Ont., March 31.—(AP.)—The London Tecumsehs, third-place club of the regular season standing, won the 1933-34 International Hockey League championship last night by defeating the Detroit Olympics, 4 to 0, in the deciding playoff game.

The victory was London's fifth in six starts in the double round-robin playoffs, involving four teams. Detroit, which tied Buffalo for first place in the regular season and was the Tecs' last remaining challenger, has won three games and lost two in the playoffs.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Joe Laurie, Jr., the actor man, here for a week's run with his Memory Lane show, tells some funny stories about the leading fistic celebrities who filled in as the referee in the fistic scene of his Plain Jane show some years ago . . . Says the best and most popular one of them all was Jim Corbett, the old trouper . . . Jack Dempsey counted too fast and almost counted out the hero when he was supposed to be saved by the bell at the count of nine to go on and win later, and Benny Leonard was just prevented from committing the same faux pas . . . Frankie Genaro counted, but couldn't be heard above a whisper, and it didn't mean anything.

Laurie is one of the old line bicycle racing enthusiasts and spins many an interesting tale about the six-day nights in New York with the show folks tangling with the sport, even so far as to staging races among themselves . . . And to think that after getting so far away from New York, he had to run into one of those things here . . . The race at the Garden, by the way, has exceeded the expectations of the promoters as a first effort and they're planning to stage another in September . . . Or maybe that wasn't supposed to become general knowledge at this time.

You can't tell the kids in Braddock and North Braddock there's no Easter rabbit . . . They've all heard of Bunny Buntach, the big boxing, wheat market and oil well man . . . If that Barney Ross-Dominic Mancini bout goes through for Derby eve in Louisville, it will see the local youngster boxing a double world champion in his thirteenth start as a professional . . . Dominic had 15 amateur bouts, which lasted a total of 16 rounds, according to his manager, Gus Camp . . . He recently stopped tough Danny Delmont and drew with a Young Terry in Louisville and impressed the fans there so much that the promoter has grabbed off Ross as his opponent for the big fight night just before the Derby . . . All of the clubs in Louisville are keen for that date and the boxing commission promised it to the promoter who came up with the best match . . . So far none of them has beaten this one and the chances are it will go through.

Around here the folks think Dominic could stand a little more experience before being sent against a gent who holds both the lightweight and junior-welterweight titles and is an admittedly great boxer and good puncher . . . However, he has sold himself so well to Louisville fans that they think he has a great chance.

Read this rave from the Los Angeles Examiner by Mark Kelly, one of the leading coast scribes, on Eddie Zivic's fight out there the other night against Rito Martinez in the semi-final to the Frankie Wallace—Georgie Hansford bout . . . "If you have never seen a dream fighting get yourself an eyeful of Eddie Zivic, one of Pittsburgh's five fighting Zivics. The kid, a legitimate lightweight, exudes class. He is about the neatest looking boxing parcel seen in Southern California in many a day, and why he is ever confined to the preliminary ranks is beyond this writer. A fine boxer, a willing mixer and a real sharpshooter, he is most certainly entitled to main-event consideration, and once he gets it he ought to make it tough on the other lightweights here and hereabouts.

"His sparkling performance nearly stole the entire show last night at Hollywood. He gave Rito Martinez a terrific pasting and finally knocked him out in three rounds. I do not believe that Martinez landed two solid punches in the three rounds, while Zivic gave him everything in the book."—HARRY KECK.

SLOBODA TEAM DUE TONIGHT

By TOM BIRKS

The team, with Dr. Rudolph S. Zerdun in charge, will be quartered at the Fort Pitt Hotel. Fourteen players are on the squad, M. Morich, the manager, and M. Sunjanic, president of the club, complete the party. Prominent officials of the Pittsburgh Jugo-Slav Society will greet them.

The Heidelberg team went through an extensive workout last evening in preparation for the game. The Green and Gold-clad outfit, piloted by Johnny McCosky, will be fighting to enter the grand final and annex its third national title.

Eddie Doneghay, former local soccer referee, and now ace of the Eastern Referee's Association, arrived in town today. Eddie, just back from a two weeks' jaunt to Mexico for the international game between Mexico and Cuba, is on his way to St. Louis to referee the first game in the national challenge cup competition.

Schmeling-Paulino Bout Postponed

BARCELONA, Spain, March 31.—(AP.)—The bout between Max Schmeling, former world heavyweight champion, and Paulino Uzcudun, the Basque wood chopper, scheduled for April 8, has been postponed indefinitely because of an injury to the German boxer's hand.

The announcement followed a day in which there were frequent rumors of postponement, both because of Schmeling's injury and because the advance sale of tickets had not come up to expectations. It was not definitely decided, however, until after Schmeling's hand had been examined by physicians attached to the Spanish Boxing Federation.

MEDICA CRACKS TWO MARKS

COLUMBUS, O., March 31.—(AP.)—A bespectacled youngster from the University of Washington, Jack Medica, shattered a pair of National Intercollegiate Athletic Association swimming records here in the preliminary events of the eleventh annual N. C. A. A. championships.

Despite the sensational work of the Seattle sophomore, his individual efforts were overshadowed by the well-balanced team work of the University of Michigan and the University of Southern California, who each placed eight men for the final events tonight.

Two other N. C. A. A. marks went by the boards and one national intercollegiate mark was tied. An N. C. A. A. mark can be broken or made in the championship meet while an intercollegiate may be set in any meet participated in by N. C. A. A. schools. Walter Spence, of Rutgers, and the 30-yard medley team from Yale also entered the record books.

Jim Gilhula, of Southern California, also cracked the old N. C. A. A. mark in the 440-yard free style when he negotiated the distance in 4:54.

Lott Tires, Quits, Stoefen in Final

ATLANTA, March 31.—(AP.)—After a series of statements, changed plans and new statements, it appeared today that Lester Stoefen, tall University of Southern California tennis star, would meet Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, of Atlanta, this afternoon in the final of the Atlanta-Biltmore invitation tournament.

The statements started yesterday at the end of a weary three-hour 65-game match Stoefen and Lott were playing in the semi-finals. At the end of the sixty-fifth game Lott threw down his racket and said:

"I'm getting too old for this kind of stuff when there's no more than this at stake; let Stoefen have it."

Later in his hotel he announced he would finish the match tomorrow. Stoefen agreed. Talking it over later, Lott and Stoefen said they decided they wouldn't go through with it after all, and flipped a coin. Stoefen won—or lost, whichever way it's considered—and said he would play Grant in the final.

ICE STAR RECALLED

BUYING FLURRY LIFTS STOCK VALUES

NEW YORK, March 31.—(AP.)—Initial irregularity in the stock market today was followed by mild rallying tendencies. Utilities, however, continued somewhat soft, with Consolidated Gas and Public Service of New Jersey down about a point each.

Active buying flurries occurred in some of the aviation and amusement shares, but leading industrials and rails were rather narrow, and quiet.

Quotations were steady to fractions higher in shares of United States Steel, General Electric, American Telephone, du Pont, Noranda Mines, General Motors, Loew's, United Aircraft, Bethlehem and Westinghouse.

Week-end trade reviews continued to view the business situation in an optimistic light. Dun and Bradstreet found that Easter trade reached a peak exceeding earlier estimates with persistent extension of consumer demand being reported from all parts of the country.

Despite unseasonal weather in many districts, it was said, the sales volume rose as much as 70 per cent above the same week of 1933, 20 per cent over 1932 and was only slightly under the corresponding week of 1931. The immediate outlook for basic industrial lines was also believed to have improved.

Industrial analysts pointed out that, with the number of workers promised a 10 per cent wage increase nearing the half-million mark, increased buying power of consumers will approximate four million dollars a month.

The somewhat more than seasonal decrease of 17,311 cars loaded for the week ended March 24, was accounted for principally by lower coal and grain shipments. The drop in the fuel figures, of course, was attributed to better weather. Grain loadings were off, it was thought, because many farmers were holding for higher prices. All loadings for the week, however, were 26.8 per cent ahead of the same week last year.

Leading foreign exchanges were a little mixed in early dealings. Sterling was off 7/8 of a cent at $5.12 1/8, while French francs were a bit higher at 6.58 cents.

WESTINGHOUSE PARING LOSS

Constant paring of operating expenses has put Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company in a position where the first quarter of 1934, aided by a moderate increase in billings, will show a net loss reduced by half from the first three months of 1933, when that period last year the company had a net loss of $3,491,572. In the final quarter last year, Westinghouse had a loss of $1,553,180.

New orders booked in the first quarter this year have been running more than 50 per cent ahead of the corresponding quarter last year when they totaled $12,847,801.

Richfield Cuts Deficit in Half

LOS ANGELES, March 31.—William C. McDuffie, receiver for the Richfield Oil Company of California, stated that operations of the company and wholly-owned subsidiaries for six months ended December 31, 1933, resulted in a net loss of $533,344 after all charges including depreciation and depletion. This compares with a net loss of $1,363,426 for the corresponding 1932 period.

BRAZIL LEADER RAPS TRADE JINGOISM

Edward Tomlinson, foremost American commentator on South American economic and political conditions, has just completed a tour of South America as special correspondent of Universal Service. In a series of articles, he has written facts as he found them regarding American interests and business conditions in Brazil, the Argentine, Uruguay and Chile.

By EDWARD TOMLINSON

Noted Authority on South American Economics.

While the radical elements in Rio Janeiro and the surrounding Brazilian states advocate the curbing of foreign industrial enterprise, the industrious people of the far south of the republic give foreign industry every encouragement.

General Flores da Cunha, governor of the rich progressive state of Rio Grande do Sul, and one of the powerful figures behind the national government, assured me in the state capital of Porto Alegre recently that foreign interest need have no fear of unreasonable regulations in his state. He said:

"How foolish it would be for us to start shackling foreign industry in Brazil. This country has an abundance of resources, nearly everything in the category of natural riches, but we cannot develop them on a big scale without assistance from the outside.

"In the constitutional assembly now in session in Rio de Janeiro, there has been talk of putting severe restrictions on capital from abroad. But I have no sympathy with such ideas. It is even unfortunate to discuss them, for such discussion is bound to have a bad psychological effect in other countries.

"WHOLE WORLD ILL"

"However, the whole world has been ill for several years. The minds of many people have become obsessed by all sorts of fantastic ideas. Also every country has its small minds, and occasionally some of them get into high places, but Rio Grande do Sul will not be found following the advice of such people.

"I assure you that there need be no fear for the safety of American money invested here in this section."

These words were spoken by a man who holds undisputed power in one of the three most highly developed and advanced states in the entire country. Rio Grande do Sul is the Texas of Brazil, an empire in itself.

Racially, socially and politically it is about the most homogenous of all the 20 states. The majority of its people are of German and Northern European descent. They are property owners, actively engaged in making their own way in the world.

They believe that the more investors and the more developments there are, the more opportunities there will be in which all may share. They have no time for radical or even socialistic ideas.

CUNHA POWERFUL FIGURE

Interestingly enough this is the home state of Provisional President Getulio Vargas, who has guided the federal government ever since the revolt of 1930, which resulted in the overthrow of the Sao Paulo coffee growers' regime, headed by President Washington Luis. And since present indications point to the selection of Vargas as constitutional president within the next few weeks, it is generally accepted that Flores da Cunha will be a strong force for sound, business-like government at the national capital.

But no matter what may happen in the Rio, Flores da Cunha is and will almost certainly remain the government, if not the governor, of Rio Grande do Sul. He enjoys the utmost confidence of the majority of his people. They not only respect his ability but they trust his honesty and straightforward dealings, because he has demonstrated all of these.

Besides—he has 30,000 troops better trained and equipped than most of those of the federal government itself.

Otto Kahn Played Part In Famous Corner

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

Business Editor

THE DEATH of Otto H. Kahn marks the passing of one of the last participants in the Northern Pacific corner.

Mr. Kahn was too young to be one of the giants in the thick of this greatest of financial battles but he played an important part as a member of the firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

Mr. Kahn also had much to do with the reorganization of Union Pacific which was a first chapter to the Northern Pacific corner.

Mr. Kahn is most remembered by living generations for his leadership of the Metropolitan Opera, and for the fact that his son leads a jazz band, but the famous struggle for control of a great railroad system put most recent financial struggles in the shade.

Morgan Fights Loeb for Control

MR. KAHN JOINED the firm of Kuhn, Loeb in 1893. In 1901 occurred the famous Northern Pacific corner. It was not just a mere traders' corner. It represented a fight for control of the road between J. P. Morgan & Co. and Kuhn, Loeb.

Morgan was banker for the Hill-Burlington-Great Northern group, while Kuhn, Loeb was banker for the Harriman-Union Pacific group. On May 9 competitive buying of Northern Pacific stock reached its height. The stock rose to more than $1,000 a share, while other prices fell from 15 to 50 per cent, due to fear of the havoc which might result from the defeat of either of the struggling financial leaders.

The bankers, however, saw their own danger and came to terms. The result was the formation of the Northern Securities Company, which took over the holdings of both in Northern Pacific stock as well as Great Northern stock.

Financier's Life Showed Many Sides

WHILE MR. KAHN'S financial and operatic activities are widely known in this country, he is mentioned in the Encyclopedia Britannica only in reference to an entirely different activity.

St. Dunstan's is a privately supported charity devoted to the care of officers, non-commissioned officers and privates blinded in the British Army, Navy or air service during the World War. A house in Regent's Park, London, was donated for the use of this organization during the war by Mr. Kahn. Its administrative offices still are in this building.

CHAPTER XXXII.

Pippin felt relieved. She felt buoyant and free. It would be all right now. Helena would come. They would give the problem to her. She would meet it. She would sit there at the table, smiling—yet underneath, weepy and proud. She would surround Vivian with that sweet, laughing tenderness of hers. It would no longer seem so desperate. She had this faith in Helena.

It was two o'clock. She didn't return to the chemistry lab but stepped out into the sun. It was a warm, uplifting day. All the bushes were flaming with berries. The heather bloomed, and spread out before her was a wonderful field of red geraniums, the petals shining as though newly enameled. She went up and touched the blossoms. She wondered uneasily: "Have I embarrassed Vivian?" Vivian's eyes with that dark finality, that still tragedy, came before her. "I had to do it," she thought excitedly, "It's just as though you saw a person drowning."

Pippin Frightened

This made her frightened again. This brought back all her images. She got into her car and drove to Vivian's apartment. Outside, there was no sign of the little car Sherry had borrowed. She went into the hall. Vivian's door was locked. Pippin laid her books on the threshold and looked at her wrist watch. She said to herself in a little catchy voice: "Why it's not yet three o'clock. Of course they wouldn't be back. Such a lovely day." She decided to go up to the library and study. She had some hard chemistry problems to do. She worked for half an hour. She couldn't concentrate. She tried reading a French book, a dull essay of Diderot. But she could not stop the uneasy clamor—the hot, disturbed restlessness that kept repeating: "Perhaps she's there now—might as well drop around now."

She went back to the apartment. Still the door was locked; still there was no answer to her ring.

Does Marketing

She went over to the market and bought supplies for their dinner. She dallied a long while at her shopping, picking out alligator pears and T-bone steaks and meditating on vegetables that wouldn't need fixing.

It was 5 o'clock and already the light was fading. They'd be there now—surely by now. She stood outside the locked door, listening to the bell cutting through the silence. She rang and rang. All at once she felt weak and leaned against the door. Perhaps they had gone to the city.

She took the knob and shook it violently. A woman in a neighboring apartment looked out. She said in a friendly tone: "How do you do, Miss Ramm? I believe Miss Drake is out."

"Do you know when she went out?"

The woman looked off into space, frowned a little: "I think it was about 1 o'clock—not very much afterward. If I'm not mistaken, she had a suitcase with her."

"A suitcase!" Oh, did she. Why—thanks."

Takes Suitcase

She walked out and stood at her car, trembling and repeating vaguely: "A suitcase—I wonder why she took a suitcase? I wonder if she went alone?"

She drove down to a drug store, went into a booth and called Sherry to the phone. The fright she had been fighting all afternoon grew shrill at the sound of Sherry's voice. She said in a thin, strident tone: "Where's Vivian?"

"Isn't she at the apartment?"

"She hasn't been here since half past two to my knowledge. When did you return from your ride?"

"Ride? We didn't go for a ride. I was only there about 10 minutes. You were hardly out of the door when I left."

Sherry said: "She was tired. She wanted to sleep. I think she must be there, Pippin. She may have blocked the bell."

"I guess so. I think I'll get the keys."

It was absurd to be excited like this . . . simply because Vivian had gone out and locked her door. She might have gone to her classes; she might have fallen into a deep sleep, or she might merely want solitude this afternoon.

Mrs. Osgood knew Pippin well. Without question she surrendered the duplicate key to Vivian's apartment.

Vivian Gone

Shaking and a cold dread in her heart, Pippin put the key in the lock. She stepped into the living room, closed the door behind her. She called softly: "Vivian!" She stepped into the middle of the room and called again: "Vivian!" The stillness, throbbing away with a life of its own broke in little waves, then ebbed back to the deep, rhythmic quiet.

She switched on the light and walked resolutely through the rooms. Vivian was not there. The apartment was in perfect order.

Mechanically Pippin went over to the closet. The neighbor was right. Vivian's suitcase was gone but all her clothes were there—all except a tan wool frock and a little tan hat with a chic green feather. Vivian looked lovely in that outfit—something gallant and woodland about her that made Pippin think of Rosalind in the forest.

Someone entered. She went back to the living room. It was Sherry. His face had a pale, strained look. He said, almost gasping: "Where is she?"

"I don't know. She may be anywhere. She may have taken a notion to visit her mother."

"But why did you get the notion we were riding?"

Not With Mother

"She told me not to hurry back—that she would go with you for a long ride over the hills."

Sherry ran his hand across his forehead. "You were just out of the house when she told me she wanted to sleep. She sent me away."

They looked in each other's eyes and saw the fright leaping. Sherry went over to the telephone.

Mrs. Drake's voice came with a serene, velvet huskiness: "Why no—Vivian didn't come to town, and she's not coming up over the week-end. She phoned me around noon time. She has two papers to write."

Pippin put the phone quietly on its hook. Without looking at Sherry, she said: "There's no use being so silly. She'll probably be in any minute—now—"

As Pippin turned from the desk she saw the white corner of an envelope protruding from the blotter. Mechanically she picked it up. In Vivian's strong architectural writing was this line: "The keys to the apartment."

Pippin stared at it. She said weakly: "These are the keys." She was surprised to find herself reeling. Sherry seemed approaching through a fog.

Through the fog, distantly, his voice came. "Does it mean anything, Pippin? Maybe those keys were always there."

Mystery Story Prize Winners and Solution

The solving of the mystery in the "Secret Agent X-9" story of "The Kidnaped Banker" didn't seem so difficult, according to the general run of the hundreds of solutions submitted by the boys and girls of Pittsburgh and vvicinity. These youngsters can be fooled some of the time but not all the time. The Sun-Telegraph judges, however, went over the letters very carefully and awarded the $25.00 in cash prizes as follows:

Robert F. Botkin, age 12, 25 South Second street, Duquesne, Pa., won first prize of $5.00.

Twenty $1.00 prizes were awarded as follows:

Jean Curran, 801 West Main street, Carnegie, Pa.; George Woltemar, 603 Ravenswood avenue, Bellevue, Pa.; Sidney Herskovitz, 35 North Canal street, Natrona, Pa.; John Treshler, Jr., 490 West Seventh avenue, Homestead, Pa.; Andrew Yank, 369 Munson avenue, McKees Rocks, Pa.; Mabel Marshall, 328 South Linden avenue, Pittsburgh; Irene Beegi, R. D. No. 2, Monongahela, Pa; Miss Janet Dunbar, 220 North street, McDonald, Pa.; Robert Saffron, 728 Mellon street, Pittsburgh.; Woodrow Harrison, Edri, Pa.; Miss Leslie Otterson, 742 Middle avenue, Wilmerding, Pa.; Louis Erk, 18 Ludy avenue, North Side, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Miss Alma Thomas, 39½ Superior street, Duquesne, Pa.; Margaret Chesney, 1330 Meldon avenue, Donora, Pa.; Milton Abrams, 403 South Atlantic avenue, Pittsburgh; Betty Amess, 400 North Morris street, Waynesburg, Pa.; Bernard Lazirovitz, 415 Eighth avenue, West Homestead, Pa.; Mary Jane Howarth, 1425 Grandin avenue, Dormont, Pa.; Gladys Peterson, Manhattan Cafe, Connellsville, Pa.; and Jack Bates, 500 Justus avenue, Carnegie, Pa.

1—The banker said he couldn't tell the time, day or night, while imprisoned. This eliminates the Jermyn street hideout, as there was a clock at the factory entrance.

2—The Atlantic road flat cannot be the hideout used, because there is running water there and Wilson explained his drinking water had to be brought from downstairs.

3—The heavily carpeted stairs eliminated the Limpy Briggs' headquarters as the third possible hideaway. The banker said he heard people walking up and down the stairs, while he was held. Hence, the unvisited flat at 84 Dickson street must be the place where the banker was detained as it is the fourth and final possibility.

We mean they wouldn't have anything on which to rest their feet.

TOUGH LUCK, MAYOR.

(Flora, Ill., Journal-Record.)

Our mayor, Guy Ayers, sure thought his heavenly days were just around the corner when he poured more coal on his forge fire and cabooey! She blowed up! The smith thought his forge had been loaded with rifle shells or powder. He is able to work on more wagon wheels and unless something unforseen happens he will pull through.

Q. and A. DEPARTMENT

Dear, Helpful Aunt Bella:

Is it etiquette to let a boy kiss you the first time you go out with him, or should you wait till the second or third time? My girl friend says it's common to let a guy kiss you the first time, but the boy who took me out said it would be O. K. Whata'yu think, auntie?

On Pins and Needles.

Ans.—In a situation of this kind, my dear young friend, there are no hard and fast rules by which Auntie B. could make up her mind to tell you what's what. To properly judge all the angles, auntie will have to put herself in your place and look around. Please let me know when this can be arranged.

A. ("Glad to Help") Bella.

MEN WHO MATTER.

Today we point with pride to Adolfus G. Doakes, autobile manufacturer. Instead of trying to make cars in the shape of dewdrops, maneating sharks or electric eels, and instructing his salesmen to prate about wind resistance, Mr. Doakes has done something different. He is candidly pushing a new model, made in the shape of a snow plow. He claims it will reduce the pedestrian resistance.

Some Republicans are still skeptical, however. They say it's simply impossible for the government to go far enough in debt to get the people out of debt.

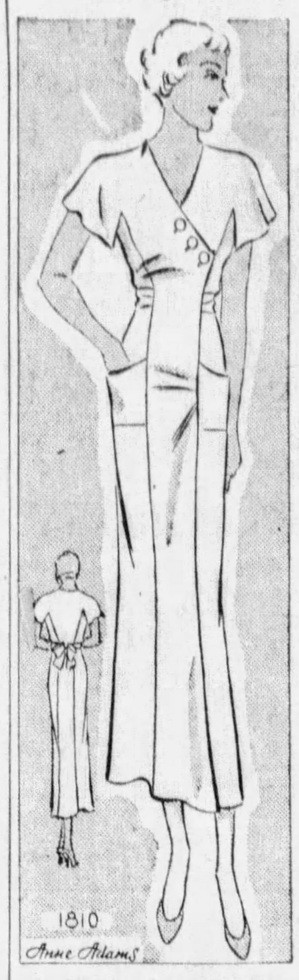
House Frock Boasts Coat-Like Lines

Pattern 1810

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern



From neckline to hem—there isn't a thing about this attractive house frock that an inexperienced sewer couldn't make. It opens the practical coat-like way, the entire front panel and capelet sleeves are cut in one, and the belt joined to the panel makes the waistline readily adjustable. The back, too, is cut in similar economical fashion. You'll want at least two of this style—one in a monotone and one in a gay print—using cottons, of course, for both. With this pattern comes one of the new dressmaking instructors that makes cutting, sewing and finishing easier than it ever has been before.

Pattern 1810 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 16 takes 4½ yards 36-inch fabric.

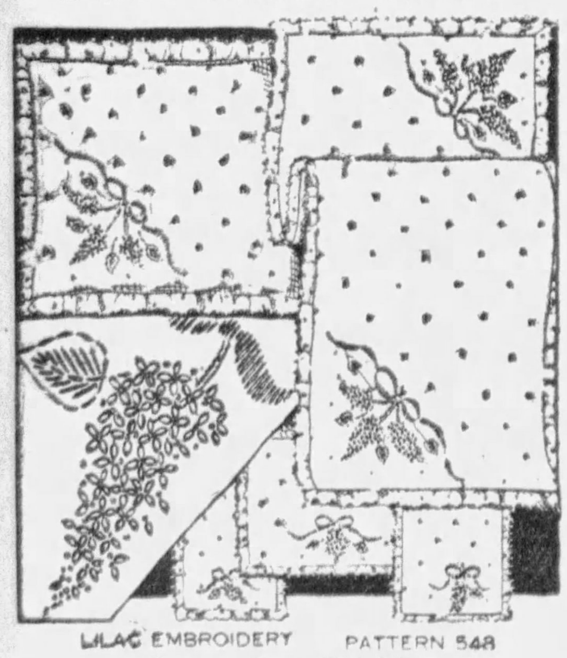
The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Rare as beautiful carriage is a charming voice. Nearly always the harsh unpleasant voice is caused by an excess of volume, or strain on vocal chords. Emphasizing words unnecessarily is a bad habit; grates on the ear. The voice that drones along on the same key is uninteresting. An affected manner of speaking incites some listeners to thoughts of violence. Clear enunciation should be the ambition of every pretty thing who is traveling along the beauty way, hoping to make the grade.

Digestive disturbances and poor circulation are common causes of a red nose. The best local treatment consists of using tepid water instead of hot or cold, and applying ointment of zinc oxide at night. To get the blood streams into action, try deep breathing, daily walks in the open air, exercise that swing the arms in wide circles, lifting up and down on the toes. Avoid highly ized dishes and heavy meats. Eat broiled chops, vegetables, cereals, green salads, fruit and drink milk.

LAURA WHEELER DESIGNS



LILAC EMBROIDERY PATTERN 548

Decorate Linens With Lilacs

No matter what the season, we all love spring and the lilacs that usher it in. Lovely in reality in all their varied colorings, they are equally charming captured in embroidery. Their dainty coloring ranging from white through pinkish lavender to deepest purple, lends itself especially to linens for the bedroom. Made in the popular lazy-daisy stitch in shaded wool or silk, these lilacs bloom in no time on scarf, vanity set, pillow and apron. Especially lovely on such dainty materials as organdie, dotted swiss, or voile, they even lend themselves to striking effects on darker materials. The pattern contains three motifs 10 inches square—two for the scarf and one for the pillow—and three smaller motifs for the vanity set.

Pattern 548 comes to you with a transfer pattern for the motifs, detailed directions and yardages for making each article and a color chart.

Employment Bureaus Are Important

They will get their diplomas. A diploma is a certificate that proves you were there when it was handed out.

Yes and no. You can quote us freely.

Yes, because he has absorbed all the information the professors have overheard.

If we were in college today we would not graduate in June. We would wait a couple of months and then jump on the world from an unexpected angle.

What happens when 5,000 young lawyers suddenly rush into the legal market? The price of lawyers goes down.

You may catch up to the Mayo brothers, but not in Rochester, Minnesota. That would be too much like trying to edge Clarence Darrow out of Chicago. Those boys have got a head start.

Things have been moving along in the same grooves for many centuries. You can't jump into the ring and say, "Everything has been switched. From now on we do everything different."

Now, West Point and Annapolis are two universities that have the law of supply and demand figured out pretty good.

The Army needs about 400 officers this spring. So they open the gates and allow that many to run loose. Same with the Navy. Washington is building brand new boats so the graduating Middies will have some place to work.

Seems that it wouldn't be a bad idea for the other colleges to do the same thing. Instead of that, they send young botanists, engineers and astronomers out into the wide world on a one-way ticket that has no definite destination.

The next time we get the presidents of famous colleges together we will kick this subject around a little.

The Annexation Bogy

The Metropolitan Plan Obviates the Danger. Comment on Local News

Speakers at the meeting of the League of Boroughs, Township and Third Class Cities of Allegheny County Thursday night—the first meeting of the league in three years—expressed furious disapproval of the forcible annexation of their municipalities to Pittsburgh. This is in the nature of an attack on a straw man; for nobody of any influence is advocating the annexation of these neighboring communities against the will of the people.

Indeed of late years the shoe has been on the other foot. To illustrate, the Pittsburgh Board of Education has grumbled about annexations which made it necessary to go to considerable expense in extending our excellent school facilities into outlying districts from which the tax collections were inadequate. Pittsburgh, it was said, had more to lose than to gain by some annexations,

The Metropolitan District plan, for which the way has been paved by a constitutional amendment adopted by the people last November, is designed to prevent forcible annexation. While it is true that it contemplates the federation of all the municipalities in the county into an administrative unit to be called the City of Pittsburgh, the voters' approval will first be required and the constituent boroughs, townships and third class cities are to continue to enjoy a large measure of autonomy.

This revival of the moribund League of Boroughs, Townships and Third Class Cities, this raising of the bogy of forcible annexation to Pittsburgh, is suspicious. It looks very much like a scheme to obscure and distort a real issue—the question if small school districts and second class townships shall be consolidated into larger units with a view to getting rid of unnecessary officials and saving the taxpayers some money.

These small governmental units were in many cases created in the era of the oxcart, when every little tract of land, no matter how thinly populated, had to be more or less autonomous and independent because lack of transportation facilities cut it off from intimate contact with the rest of the world. But oxcart days have passed and local government should be modernized to adapt it to the era of automobiles and paved roads, airplanes, the telephone and radio.

It is wasteful and inefficient to continue to maintain in Allegheny County more than a hundred independent school districts, each with its board of directors, tax collector, solicitor, auditor and secretary. But advocating their consolidation is a far different matter from calling for forcible annexation to Pittsburgh. Depend upon it, if the issue is twisted and camouflaged, greedy politicians, fearful of losing their jobs, will be found responsible.

We have here in Allegheny County about 25,000 persons regularly on the public payrolls—about one for every 11 families. Their salaries take about 42½ millions of dollars from the taxpayers annually. Others take their pay in fees. If local government is modernized, some of these jobholders will lose their jobs. Hence it will not be surprising if, unwilling to let the issue be fought out on its merits, they drag in irrelevant matters to confuse the voters.

Not a few of the candidates for the Legislature for whom we are to vote in May have declared in favor of modernization of local government through consolidation of small units. It is not a question of home rule; it is a question of good service and reduction in the tax burden. Civic bodies should be on the alert to keep the issue before the people and to prevent being diverted from the objects in view by the drawing of a red herring across the trail.

Apropos of economy in government, it is noted with approval that Councilmen William A. Magee, Charles Anderson and William J. Soost have returned to the City Clerk one-sixth of their pay, or the equivalent of the cut that city employes have had to take. Councilmen Robert Garland and P. J. McArdle and the Democratic Councilmen, John J. Kane, Walter R. Demmler, Thomas J. Gallagher and John M. Huston, are returning $1,000 each, or one-eighth of the annual salary. We think some of the Councilmen were shamed into making this sacrifice; but let due credit be given them anyway.

Democratic leaders have cause for jubilation in reports from Thursday's registration showing a big increase in their party enrollment in Pittsburgh. With a real fight thus assured, and with the leaders unable in either of the major parties to dictate a slate, although some of the Democrats have attempted it, it looks as though the people would have an opportunity to exercise their own judgment in filling offices this year. This should put the candidates on their good behavior.

There was a time not so long ago when a little group of Republican leaders could and did say who was to be the next Governor of Pennsylvania, or our next United States Senator, and the people more or less servilely indorsed their choice. That era has passed—we hope forever. With the qualifications of the candidates and their platforms under careful scrutiny, we should get better public servants and better government.

The contract for more than half a million dollars worth of electrical machinery placed with the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company by the United States Engineer Corps is a reminder that while Pennsylvania has been unfairly treated by the Public Works Administration in the allocation of PWA funds, we are getting some benefit indirectly from funds allotted to other states. The electrical machinery has been ordered for a PWA job in Montana.

A comparison of the death rates from pneumonia in Pittsburgh, Boston, Baltimore, Buffalo, St. Louis, San Francisco and Milwaukee, cities in about the same population class, gives Pittsburgh the unpleasant distinction of being far in the lead, with 175.8 deaths per 100,000 of population, as against only 61 in Milwaukee, at the bottom of the list. In view of the evidence that air pollution has something to do with pneumonia, the publication of the figures should stimulate the local campaign for pure air.

Curious illustrations are conspicuous in tomorrow's issue of the American Weekly, the magazine distributed with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. The frontispiece shows quaint paintings of troubadours and their lady-loves, in full color. Another article tells about "Alice in Wonderland" scenes in a church window in the little English town where Lewis Carroll, author of that classic, was born.

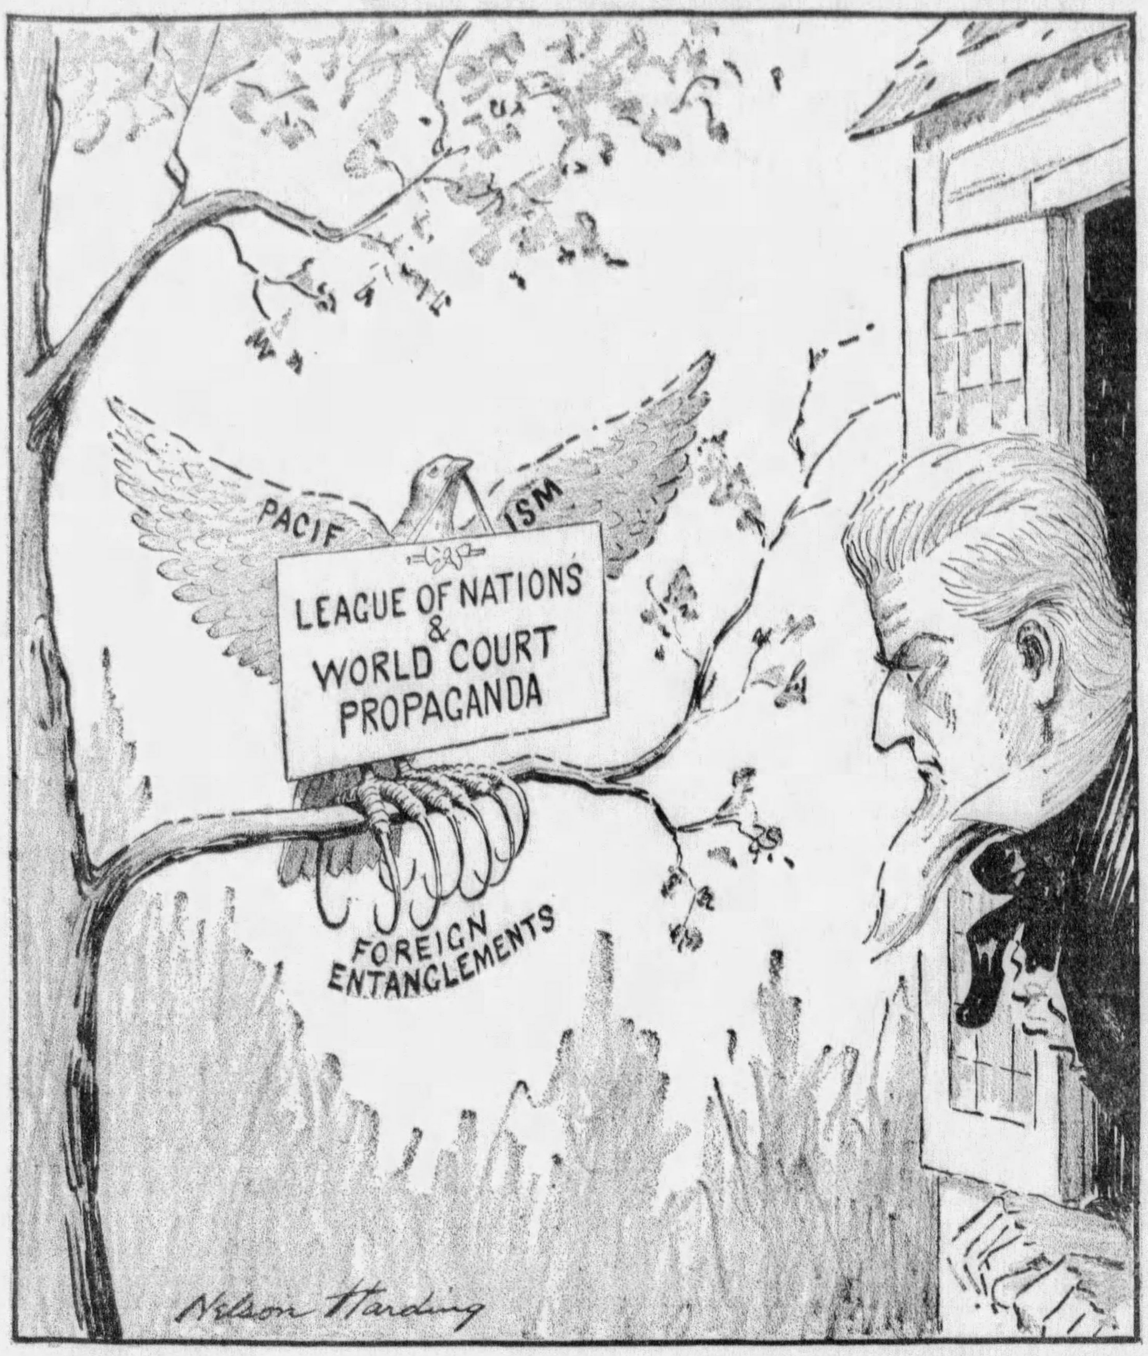
Pretty Dove, Ugly Claws

By Nelson Harding



It seems a very gentle dove
Alighting on the tree,
And sweetly cooing: "Uncle Sam,
Come join the League with me."

But he can see the curving claws,
The talons sharp and long!
If he is wise he will not be

Etosha Pan, Africa's Weird Animal Graveyard, Where Thousands of Skeletons Terrify Travelers

By Edwin C. Hill

THAT'S a strange tale that Basil Fuller, noted English explorer, brings back from the Dark continent. It's the tale of Nature's own graveyard, which the explorer came upon in Southwest Africa, where there are today one hundred thousand square miles of jungle and swamp into which few white men have ever penetrated. And, in the heart of this savage wilderness, Basil Fuller stumbled upon one of the most mysterious and haunting spots in all the world, the only animal cemetary in the world—a place of death and desolation, which has been trapping its victims for thousands of years and stripping them to their glistening bones.

Etosha Pan, it is called, "the Lake of Slime," seventy-five miles long and fifty miles wide—so sinister and terrifying that the African natives believe it to be the home of evil spirits, and even the stolid and hard-headed Boers pass by with a shudder, whipping up their oxen. Approached by moonlight from the North East, the Pan presents a terrifying spectacle. The corner of a ridge is turned, and suddenly the traveller sees before him a vast expanse of flat country, which nature has chosen to use as a ghastly cemetery.

Skeletons Gleam In the Moonlight

THOUSANDS of bleached skeletons gleam in the moonlight—skeletons which seem unable to rest, even in death, for many still stand in the tortured attitudes, caused by frantic efforts to escape, scores and even hundreds of years ago. Grinning and naked, stand the gruesome army. For into the distance extends the Pan, but its victims are gathered most thickly near the edge of the firm ground which they thoughtlessly deserted.

Skeletons of almost every creature known to Africa may be seen from some spot on the bush-lined fringe of Etosha Pan. The slime if sufficiently stiff to maintain the bodies, once all struggles have ceased. They stand there distorted and still, as though about to answer some ghostly challenge from the wilds. Seen by starlight the bleached bones gleam hideously, and the scene is reminiscent of the more gruesome of the works of Gustave Dore.

* * *

Elephant Skeleton Dominates the Pan

THERE is one skeleton that dominates them all. Once, it belonged to a giant elephant. Probably the poor beast perished quickly, for, considering what his bulk must have been, he sank but little into the slime. He stands a short distance beyond the end of a spit of firm ground that juts out into the swamp. His tusks are huge and in good condition, but valuable though they be, no native can be persuaded to become party to the plan to rob the skeleton.

An old hunter told Basil Fuller that he once asked his "boys" to retrieve them for him. But the blacks refused, saying that they did not fear the swamp—for could not the white man devise a means of overcoming its treachery?—but rather the spirits that inhabit it. And so the skeleton of the giant elephant remained unmolested.

Etosha Pan has mysteries other than the skeleton army. The western side is mountainous, and by the road passed the wagons of many an adventurous Boer, who preferred the dangers of the great unexplored to life in a country ruled by foreigners unwilling to allow him to keep the slaves which formed so important a part in his wealth. Many wagons arrived at Etosha Pan, but not all passed on. Perhaps the drivers were careless, perhaps they were even unwary enough to negotiate the difficult country in their heavy vehicles by night—surely a most unlikely procedure for experienced dwellers on the veldt. But be all this as it may, the story goes that sunk somewhere in Etosha Pan are many wagons and their luckless occupants.

All a part of the grim and fascinating mystery of Africa—that vast, skull-shaped continent floating between two warm oceans—and for all its railways and man-made cities, untamed, scornful, contemptuous, sinister.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 31.—Purely personal piffle: I like to read children the Rikki-Tikki-Tavi story from the "Jungle Book." Will Rogers is the twitchiest yet healthiest person I've ever known. Uppermost topic in the mass public thought is "Freedom." Next to Venetian gondoliers, West Indian elevator boys are the most insolent.

I like to motor along Quaker Ridge, sniff wet leaves and smell a baby's head after a bath. Peach-blown perfectly describes Mrs. Will H. Hays' complexion. Fannie Hurst, extremely domestic, suggests the dark-eyed Russian adventuress in the mystery novel. The only tennis player I care to watch is Helen Wills Moody.

I don't care a fig for Dorothy Parker's stuff on the radio. My name has been written in the visitors' books at the ex-Kaiser's at Doorn, at Flaubert's home in Rouen, Frederick the Great's study in Potsdam, Browning's home in Venice and Victor Hugo's house in Place des Vosges, Paris.

Work comes easier on rainy days. Don Marquis is the finest philosopher of his period. American tipping should be standardized, if we must tip, on a horse-sense basis. A cold with me never lasts more than two days. The bugs find only one red corpuscle to work on and shriek "T'ell with it!"

* * *

Anybody sitting in a high open window gives me the ork-orks the rest of the day. Karl K. Kitchen knows more stimulating eating places here and abroad than any one of my acquaintances. How neatly hotels have taken the play from the speakeasies. What messy places they were. And how stupid! I had no feeling for paintings until after 35.

* * *

Simile: "As inconsiderate as a police dog owner." Sophie Tucker seems the only prosperous survivor of vaudeville's single singing turns. Magazines are paying top prices for the most difficult of all fiction jobs—the short, short story. The "Anthony Adverse" plagiarism rumors won't get anywhere. Every earnest writer faces them. Meredith Nicholson's epistles are the most engaging of all personal correspondence. George Bernard Shaw has always been overrated. I can sit all evening watching Helen Menken's hands. Also Barbara Stanwyck's.

So-called millionaires' clubs with yard-long waiting lists are facing the sheriff's hammer. Add pet aversions—the Rocky Twins. The nicest class audiences attend news reel movies. Never failed to see a movie star in the Warwick lobby. At the moment I don't care to see Paris. And I am not running temperature over London either. A fireside boy! I don't believe anyone "gets" Gertrude Stein's lunatic twaddle. My wife is the neatest, most orderly person I have known. "Huckleberry Finn" is a dandy for an ocean voyage.

* * *

I once sat in the same theater row with three of Nora Bayes' former husbands. And they chatted together agreeably between acts. I used to think I'd like to live at the old Murray Hill Hotel. But I'm over that along with thinking a certain young actress is "glamorous." The moody, changeable type! Nothing is so trashy to me as hennaed hair. Chuck Connors used to call me "Ned." I can listen all night to a family quarrel next door—and have. Red-lighted cafes seem tawdry to me. I like movies featuring Clark Gable. And dodge those featuring—but why hurl the javelin? Still outrageous clip joints in Times Square, Mr. Commissioner! I can't quit shuddering over that terror novel, "Harriet."

* * *

Swellest description of a yellow complexion: "Like the green side of a nickel watermelon." Warner Oland is most natural movie villains. Somebody is going to think some day and star Marjorie Rambeau on the screen as a middle-aged heroine. No one beglamors the South Seas like Somerset Maugham. Before a long journey I find solace in the 121st Psalm. A broker tells me in 20 years he did not have one speculator on his books who quit ahead. And still the Stock Exchange doesn't want to be regulated.

* * *

I like James C. Cain's "The Postman Always Rings Twice" as much as any book of the winter. Fred Waring's band popularity is because he conducts with the minimum of clowning. Nothing is sadder than a musician trying to be comic. Every person I know passionately fond of their job is successful. Eddie Peabody is the world's crack banjoist.

* * *

I miss Roxy's touch at Music Hall. When my wife and I are fagged out we whine to each other like Stepin Fetchit. The only photograph printed that looked like me was Hal Phyfes in the Delineator. At 18 I used to stop in front of a certain girl's house, stand on one leg and knock out my pipe on the lifted heel of the other. A nonchalant worldling!

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

A Prayer for Springtime

My father;
Now, around me,
All the world
Is quickening;
Like eager blood
That throbs
Through waking flesh,
The urge of spring-time
Pulse in the air;
Gropes, restless,
'Till each root and twig,
Each tiny creature,
Particle of sod,
All things which hold
That Spark
Which men call God,
Swell with exultant life,
And break to joyous bi
Of blade or babe or bu

* * *

Spring birth—
How sweet it seems!
But it is not;
All birth is grim as war.
For birth IS war
Between eternal foes—
Warm Life; cold Death.
Before spring's waking
Comes long loneliness,
Dumb pain, blind struggle;
Strife of seed
Against reluctant soil;
Of bird against
The hard, enclosing shell;
Of bursting blossom
Under binding bark;
Of babe against

* * *

Birth is not easy.
Life gives no Easter, gratis.
All who would
Be rid of winter—
Wake again with spring—
Must first be willing,
And then—pay the price!

* * *

And so, I pray,
My father,
Make me dare to live!
And help me pay
Whatever life may cost!

* * *

For you know, Father,
How I want to live!
How much I long
To be a part of spring,
To share its beauty
And its brave new growth
You know how much
I long to hope again,
To dream and wonder,
And feel life
Rushing through me
With its wild, sweet sap.
But something in me
Yet lies still and cold!
I still lie buried
In Old memories—
Old losses, old regrets,
Old hate and fear—
That bind me close
As any rocky tomb;
And in this self-made tomb
I now lie trapped.
While Easter blossoms,
My own soul seems dead!

* * *

Then help me, Father!
Help me want to rise
From out the narrow tomb
Of Yesterday.
Hurt and harass me,
'Till once more I wake
And hear,
Through dulling walls,
The hot, glad challenge
Of Today!
Then give me strength
To free myself and fight,
Break through my walls—
And take my place with Spring!
Amen.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Man's History

Turn the dark pages
Back, through the ages
To the beginnings of earth;
Much lies concealed there,
Little revealed there,
Man is of mist-shrouded birth.

Fitfully, grimly
Flickers the flame down the years;
Atom to glory,
This is man's story:
Struggle and laughter and tears!

History limns it
This is man's dower:
Passion and power,
Laughter and struggle and love!

ISN'T IT SO?

No woman likes to face the fact that she has an inferiority complexion.

Roosevelt's Veto Proves Him Courageous Leader

By James T. Williams, Jr.

Courage consists not in hazarding without fear, but being resolutely minded in a just cause.—PLUTARCH.

RARE even in the annals of his exalted office is the courage revealed by President Roosevelt in his veto of the independent offices appropriation act for 1935.

And the message to Congress accompanying the veto will take high rank not only among the messages of President Roosevelt, but among the state papers of the Presidency.

In his message Mr. Roosevelt argues clearly and most earnestly and persuasively in support of his conviction that a veteran's service-connected disability "is a question of fact rather than a question of law."

And the fair-minded among his opponents will not deny the President the commendation due his valor in standing resolutely for what he believes to be "justice to the war dead, justice to the war wounded, and justice to the American people."

* * *

Veto Power Employed Sparingly

THE veto power puts to the test the courage of every President. All Presidents have employed it sparingly, the earlier Presidents more sparingly than those of recent years.

Of more than 600 vetoes to the credit of previous Presidents, less than 50 have been overridden by the Congress.

Only eight Presidents have failed to exercise the veto power. Those were John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, John Quincy Adams, Martin Van Buren, William Henry Harrison, Zachary Taylor, Millard Fillmore and James A. Garfield.

In Garfield's case, there was no opportunity for him to employ the veto power because he died before the session of Congress convened. He was the only President since the Civil War from whom Congress received no veto message.

President Washington vetoed two measures and Lincoln three. Grover Cleveland holds the all-time record for the number of his vetoes, which totaled 320. This was because Congress swamped the White House with private pension bills, passed in behalf of veterans of the Civil War in complete disregard of the merits of the case.

In fact, among pension bill vetoes by Cleveland were some that would have pensioned deserters and others who had never served in the Army. Of his 320 vetoes only three of Cleveland's were overridden in his first term.

Four of Grant's 43 were overridden, one of Theodore Roosevelt's 41 vetoes, five of Wilson's 33 vetoes, one of Taft's 30 vetoes. All of Andrew Jackson's 12 vetoes were sustained.

* * *

Theory of The Veto Power

THERE were two reasons why the framers of the Constitution gave to the President the veto power. These reasons are thus clearly set forth in "The American Commonwealth" by James Bryce:

"One is that the President, being an elective and not a hereditary magistrate, is responsible to the people, and has the weight of the people behind him. The people regard him as an indispensable check, not only upon the haste and heedlessness of their representatives, the faults which the framers of the Constitution chiefly feared, but upon their tendency, a tendency whose mischievous force experience has revealed, to yield either to pressure from any section of their constituents, or to temptations of a private nature.

"The other reason is that a veto need never take effect unless there is a minority exceeding one-third in one or other house of Congress which acts with the President. Such a minority shares his responsibility and encourages him to resist threats of a majority . . . whereas it is now the undoubted duty of an English king to assent to every bill passed by both houses of Parliament, however strongly he may personally disapprove its provisions, it is the no less undoubted duty of an American President to exercise his independent judgment on every bill, not sheltering himself under the representatives of the people, or foregoing his own opinion at their bidding."

No President of the United States has ever lost the favor of history by employing the power in fearless obedience to the dictates of his conscience.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Are you satisfied with what you are doing in your job?

Is your work up to the fullest degree of efficiency?

If not, it's just too bad for you, because there are those above you, who may have a higher standard for accomplishment in your position.

When you dissect your work—if you are honest—you should see many places where it might have been better.

They should make a comparison of their work with that of other men, who are more successful, and at the same time, try to learn why their production is not up to the highest standard of the other men.

Fewer of the older men would be demoted, if they would scrutinize their work more carefully and try to bring it up to modern and higher, standards.
